To Robin,
 To a good friend
 I have known since 1st grade. Good luck next year at C.H.S. Good Luck with your friend
 Hattie "73"

To Robin,
 Hi. How are you today?
 I do hope that you really are able to get with it and see the world and meet people. As for Bob
 I really wouldn't ~~know~~ ~~now~~ know but if you really did him, all I can say is go get him and good luck. Have fun all the time and good luck.

To Develop the Individual By One's Self . . .

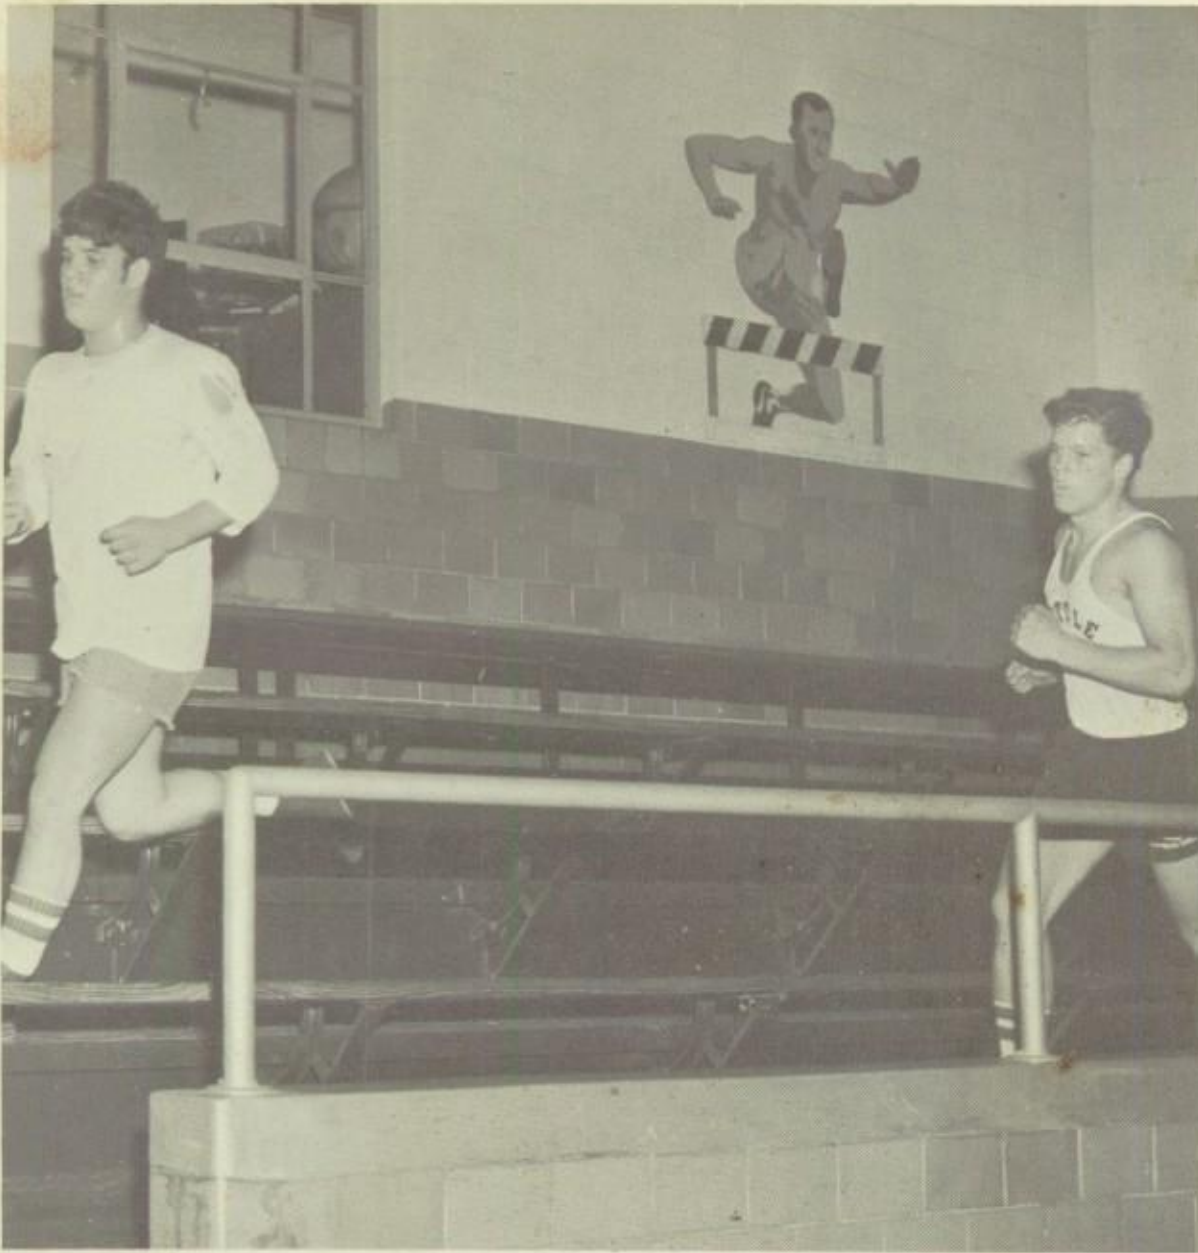

Karen McCormick displays the peace symbol which was seen throughout the year on cars, notebooks, and jewelry.

Running against Central Catholic Mike Harpest carries the ball for CHS.

Running laps around the gym helps Larry Blackford and Hall McGaughey get in shape for the wrestling season.

After a sledding party Pam Biggs hides behind a pool table and hand.

Jeff Trefz and Dick Zachary take time out from science topics.

Jan Dye's mind wanders from the chemistry topic being discussed.

Many students find snow-covered Milligan Park suitable for snow-ball fights and sledding.

Cindy Will and Debbie Archer donate their lunch time to sell tickets for the Christmas Ball.

Merry Ebenholtz and Kris Eggers sacrifice many evenings to listen to problems at CATHI, a new organization run by high school students to help teenagers.

Susan Milligan reflects some of the happier moments at CHS.

During half-time the girls in Pep Block relax, converse, and prepare themselves for the second half.

Or to Fulfill the Need To Be With a Crowd . . .

Karate, Jobs Keep CHS Students Busy

Two brothers, Bob and Scott Vance, weekly practice karate, one of the activities open for the first time to CHS students.

Throughout the school year, CHS students could be seen at school, at home, at work, and at play. Their time was spent educating themselves, helping others, and serving their community.

Work provided many students with much needed income, and helped many begin acquiring the skills they will need to support themselves after graduation.

Many young people served the Crawfordsville community by helping with projects like the CDC Study Club. Here they found a way to work with young children, teaching them needed skills.

CHS students also found time for many other activities, and their participation in these programs helped make this year more meaningful and more exciting.

Sandy Sperry spent part of her spare time the past year working at Penney's. Here she is busy at the cash register ringing up a purchase.

When CHS students weren't in class, many could be found at work. Here we see Bev Southwood busily waiting on a customer at Animal Fair in the mall.

Before attending classes at CHS, Paul Roberts enters the science building at Wabash for a chemistry class.

The Wabash Library is a place for many high school students, such as Paul Little, to do research.

Wabash Adds Dimension to Learning

Guest lecturer at Wabash College, Julian Bond, a politician and reporter from Georgia, answers questions from the audience aided by Dr. Finley Campbell.

Living in a college town proved to be an asset for many CHS students this year. Wabash College activities provided social entertainment and opportunities for academic growth.

Many students could be viewed on the stage of Ball Theater while others formed part of the audience for various productions. Guest speakers like Julian Bond sparked the interests of those who attended. Two seniors attended college classes, Paul Roberts in calculus and Steve Lewellen in chemistry.

CHS students found college activities very rewarding, and their participation in these activities helped strengthen the ties between Wabash College and the Crawfordsville community.

Exchange Students Find New Home in C'ville

Taking advantage of a midwestern winter, Jane and Henrique prepare for a fast descent on their sled.

Henrique arrived in Crawfordville just in time to attend the SSS Christmas Ball.

To host an exchange student is indeed quite an honor, and CHS was fortunate enough this year to obtain two young people, both from Brazil. These two students, a senior boy named Henrique Leiner and a junior girl named Jane Manso de Mello Vianna, spent part of their summer vacation in Crawfordville studying and learning about the people of the U.S.

Henrique moved in with Larry Palmer just before Christmas. He quickly began picking up American habits and making new friends.

Jane spent her time here living with Nancy Dahl. At CHS she found an opportunity to learn more about the U.S. and to improve her English.

For both these young people, living in America was quite an experience, one they will remember for the rest of their lives.

Captured during a moment of peace and quiet while staying at Palmers', Henrique demonstrates the perfect position for a South American siesta, American style.

Jane takes a lesson on how to grip a ping pong paddle properly.

Henrique spends one of his first evenings in Crawfordsville writing an article for the Gold & Blue on school life in Brazil.

Expressions of elation and wonder are seen on the faces of Jane and Henrique as they make their first trip through a February snow, something seldom seen in Brazil.

Hard Work and Long Hours of Practice

An empty set filled with half-completed props marks the beginning of the play.

Here, Margaret, played by Debbie Brennan, interrupts the deep conversation between Maude (Merry Ebenholtz) and Sabrina to bring some afternoon refreshments.

A young girl returns to Long Island after a five-year stay in Paris to find herself falling in love with a man she has known all her life. This story served as the plot for this year's Jr.-Sr. Class Play, Sabrina Fair.

Work on the play began in early January as crew members began constructing the set, gathering props, arranging publicity, and preparing the lighting system. After final exams, the cast got down to serious work. Lines had to be memorized and costumes had to be found.

Finally, after long hours of hard work, the play was ready to be presented. Two performances were given, and the play was termed by all a success.

Linus and Paul, portrayed by Brad Ross and Jim Hall, discuss a business venture as Sabrina, Dianne Brock, listens attentively.

Pay Off—Sabrina Fair Is Big Success

Listening patiently to Maude, Margaret prepares to take some flowers into the living room. Meanwhile Julia (Anne Rogge) sits quietly reading her evening newspaper.

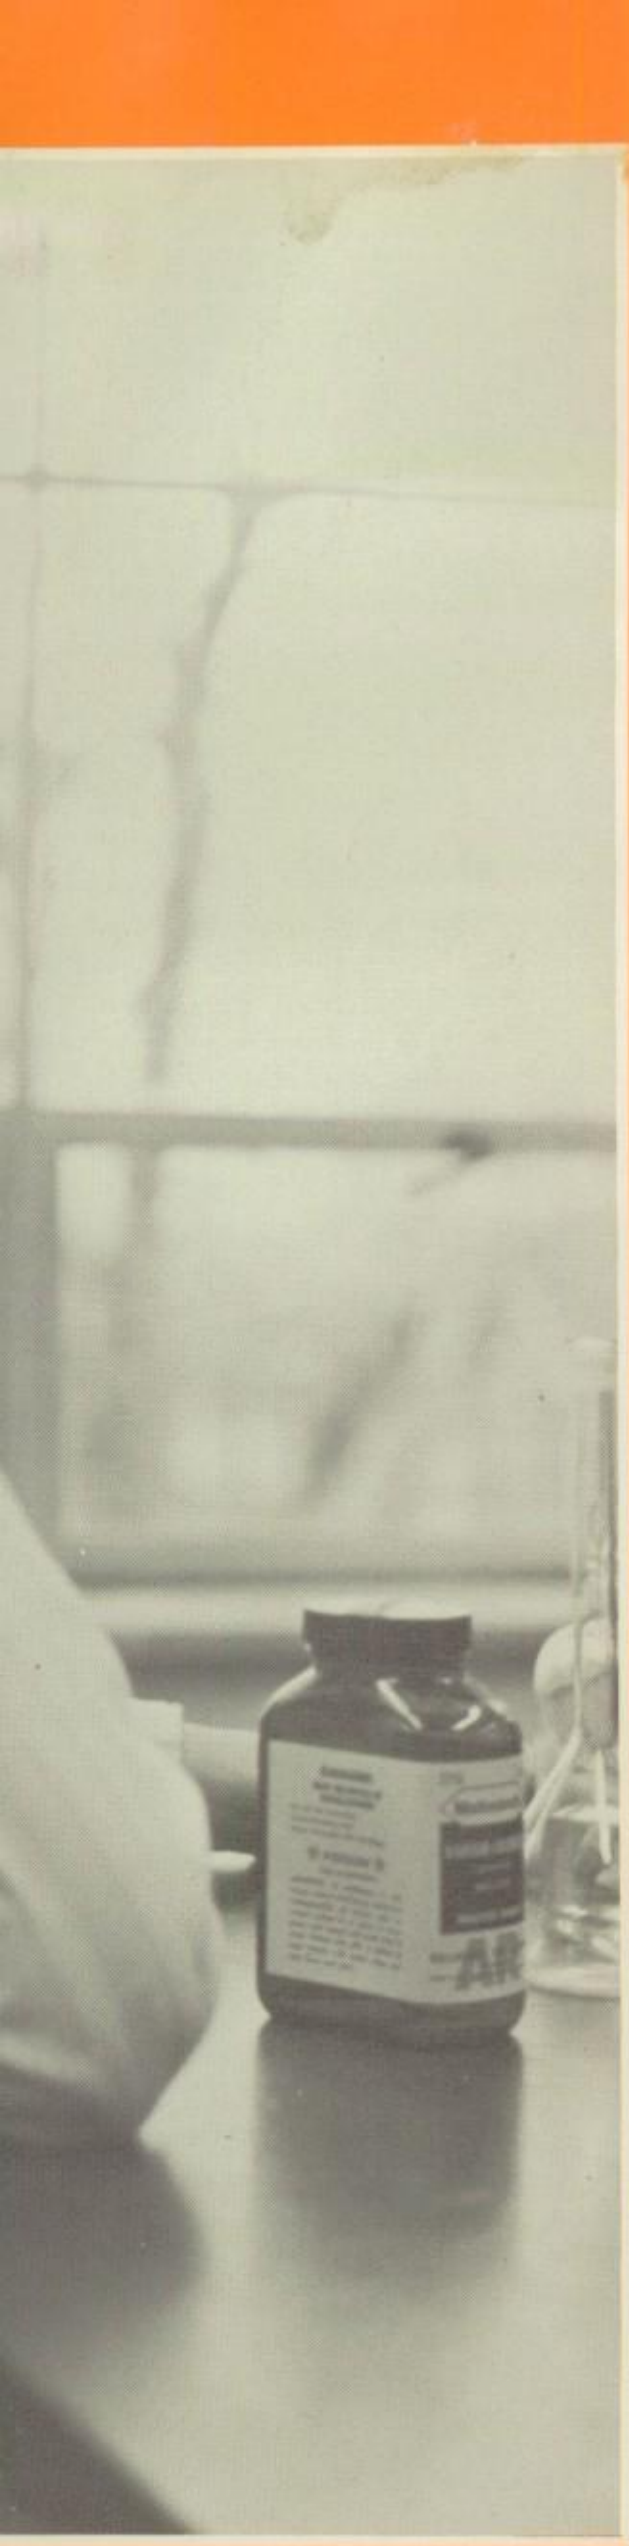

Miss Lewis, Jim Hall, and Brad Ross go over some rough spots in the manuscript.

To prevent later problems, Roger Padgitt and Anne Rogge carefully examine their instructions.

Office Serves as Crossroads of CHS

At home in his office, Mr. Golliher finds various reminders of his job as a high school principal. Here he cannot forget his many duties.

In the minds of most students, discipline and punishment were synonymous with the duties of the office. But the work of Mr. Donald Golliher, principal, and Mr. Robert Barton, assistant principal, encompassed much more. The office served as the crossroads of CHS. Students constantly used the office as a source of information while teachers used it as a detention hall. Important decisions concerning student dress and behavior streamed from the office.

Attendance records and college applications would seem to be an immense undertaking, yet with the help of the secretaries, Miss Dorthea Knight and Mrs. Letha Scott, our administration performed these important duties and other responsibilities effectively and efficiently.

The smiling face of Mr. Barton has become a familiar sight for CHS students.

Assisting our administration in daily activities, Mrs. Scott and Miss Knight fill essential positions as office secretaries. Their faces are well known to every student at CHS.

Making an important contribution to the smooth management of the school system are school board members Gus Gineris, Vice-Pres. Pierce Green, Pres. John Bowerman, Supt. C. Merrill Dailey, Max Boots and Sec. Don Morris.

School Board Links CHS to Community

Business Manager, Mr. Wayne Tate, and curriculum coordinator, Dr. Charles Arvin, handle administrative tasks.

Administrative secretaries Mrs. Mary Ann Rose, Mrs. Frances Sheets, and Miss Shirley Kinnett break for coffee.

Service Staff Is Necessary Part of CHS

Now in the guidance office, Mrs. Marietta Chase does the bookkeeping for extracurricular activities.

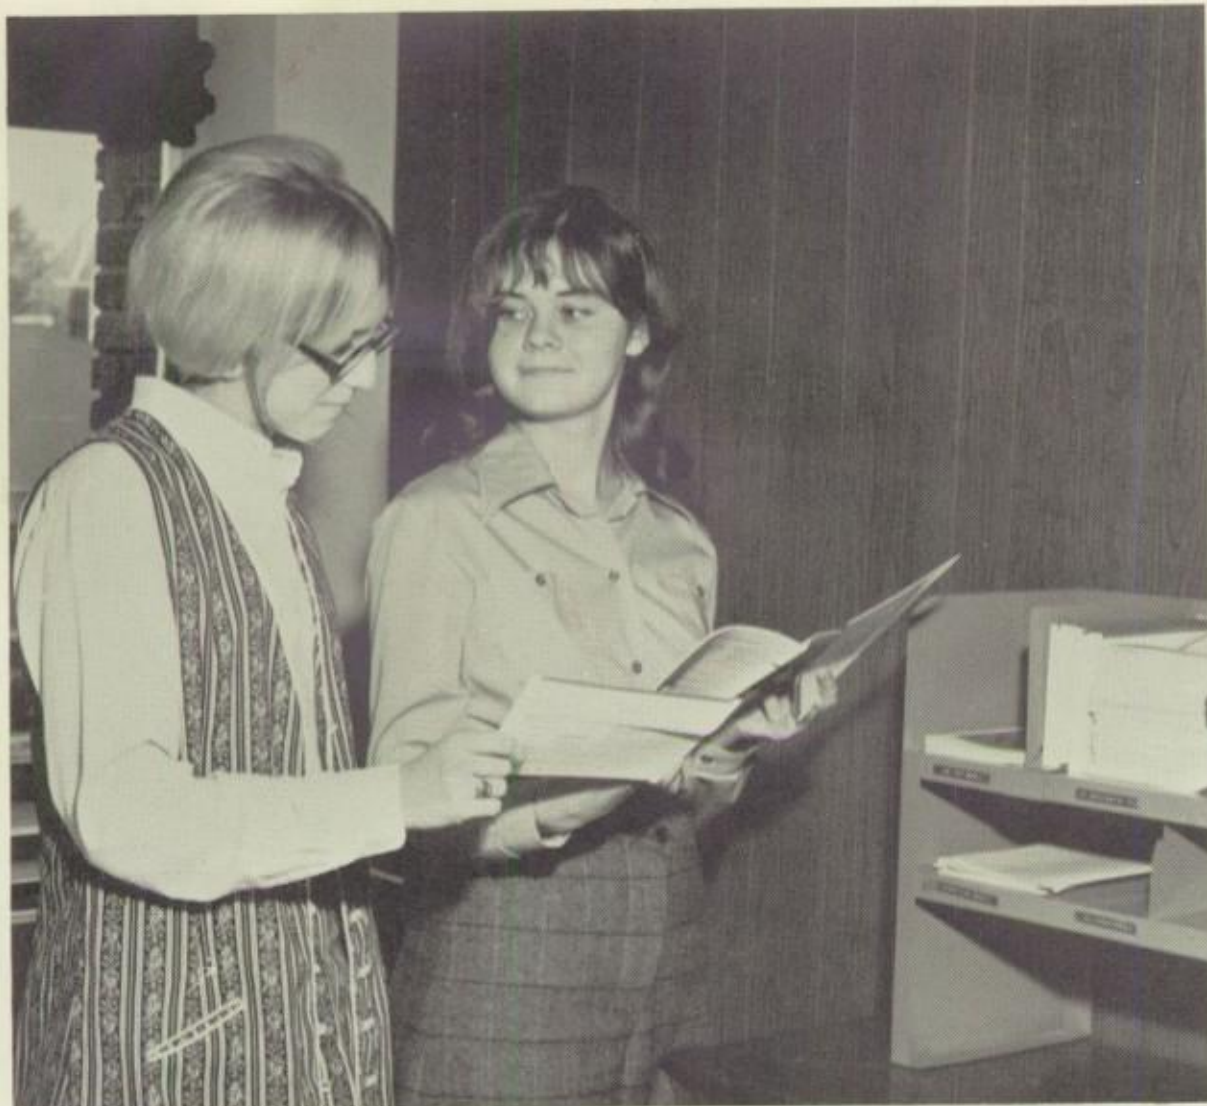

Whether a cut or an emergency, Mrs. Vera Tinsley, the school nurse, supplies the sickroom ready for both.

"A clean place in which to study" is the motto of Raymond Cline, Homer Arterburn, Rosemary Wright, Lowell Wright, Neal Wirth, and Julian Baldwin. Besides their daily tasks they perform other functions such as Julian Baldwin who drives the reliable CHS bus to and from activities.

Chief cooks and bottle washers, Betty Royal, Gerry Humbert, Rosalie Neal, LaVerne Martin, Shirley Astin, and Minnie Foy run the cafeteria.

The junior year brings the frustrations of the PSAT and the SAT to college-bound students. Carla Morris and Joan Johnson sign up for the all important tests.

One of the first to school, Mrs. Janice Stearns, attendance officer, greets absentees each morning.

Cheerful Threesome Advise CHS Students

Students from all three classes look to the smiling faces of Mrs. Jacob, Mr. Castellucio, and Mrs. Miller for assistance in planning their schedules.

Today's high school students encounter many problems. Sophomores must adjust to a new educational environment. Juniors face challenging tests—the PSAT, SAT, and the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Seniors must begin to plan their future, either by selecting a job or selecting a college.

However, CHS students did not face these problems alone. For assistance they looked to the guidance office. There they found the smiling faces of Mrs. Dorothy Jacob, Mrs. Patricia Miller, and Mr. Curtis Castellucio, counselors at CHS.

This trio was always willing to help students with personal and academic problems. By taking an interest in the students they talk with, these people become more than just guidance counselors. They become their friends.

CHS Library Offers Variety of Information to Students

The first to agree that library supervision is a difficult task is head librarian, Mrs. Carol Campbell.

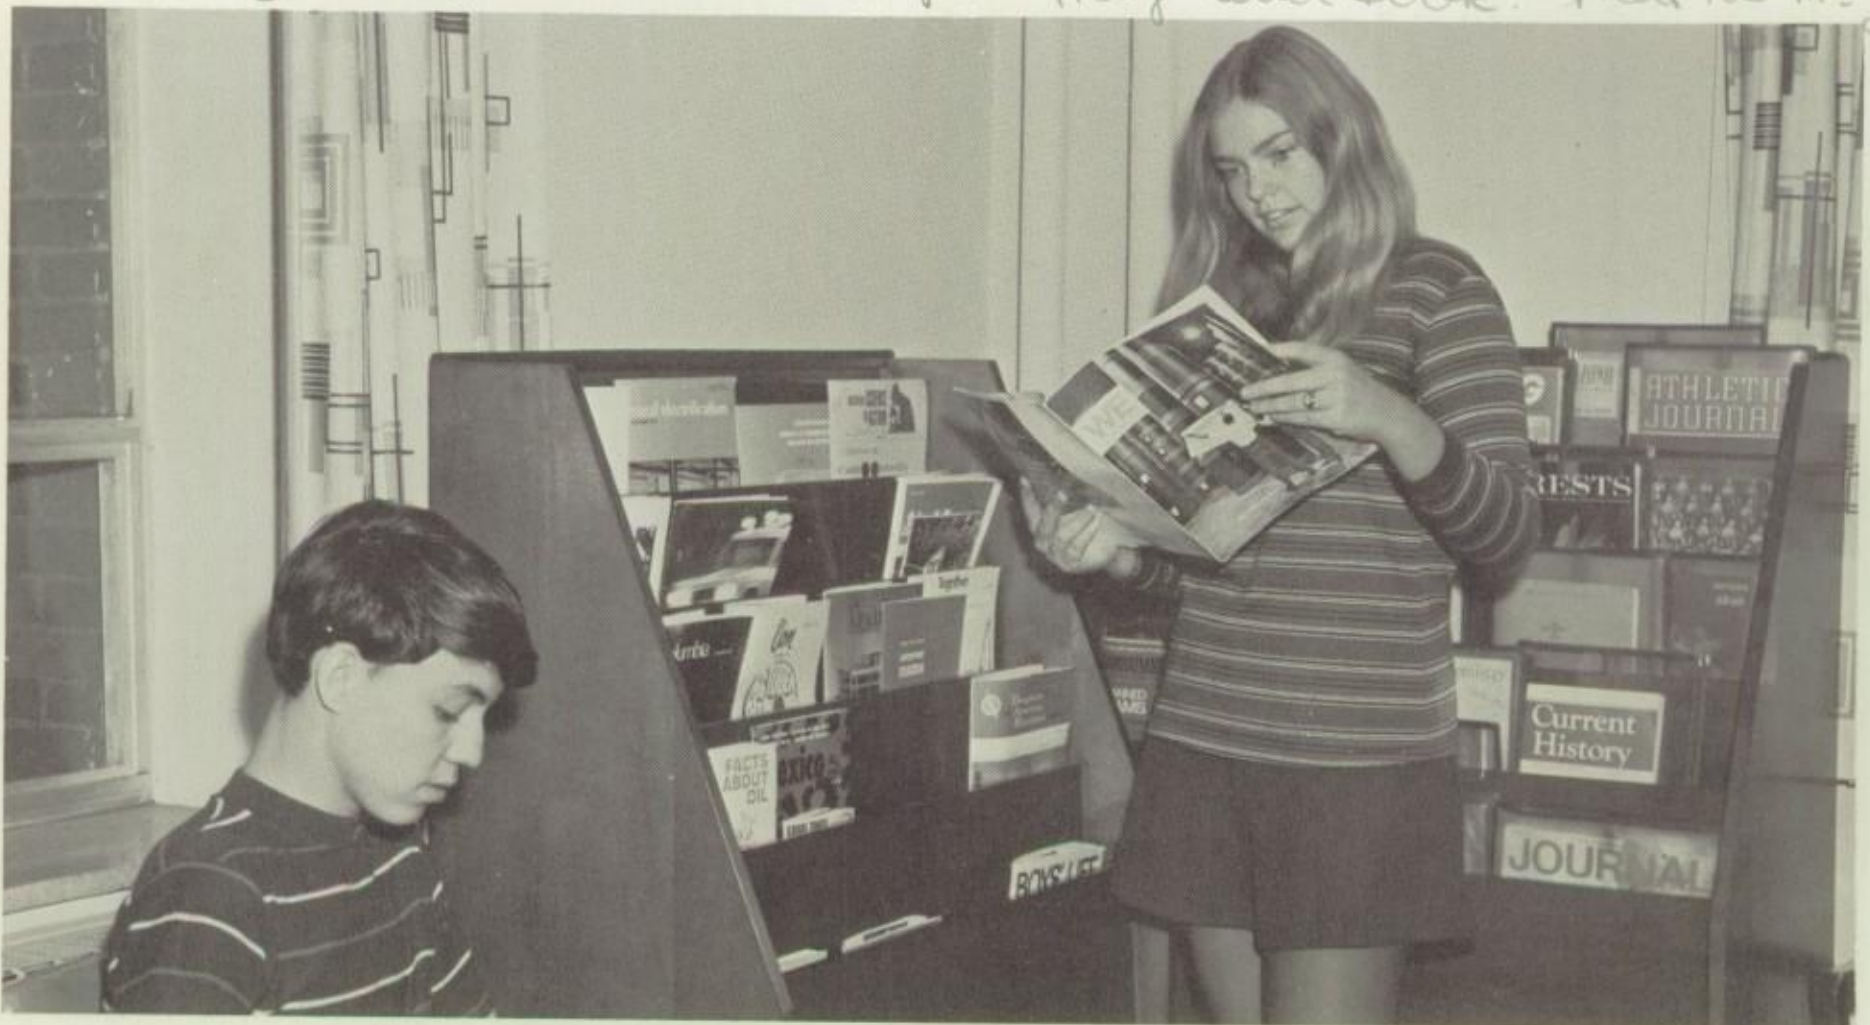

Shelves and shelves of books make a library a playground for the intellectual. But even the average student found enjoyment in the library at CHS. Books of fiction and non-fiction provided a link between literature and life for those students who took advantage of the opportunities available to them.

Study hall students found a place to relax and read newspapers and magazines. They discovered that the library is handy when they had last minute work to do on term papers and research projects, and they found that available materials were highly adequate for independent projects.

Mrs. Rosalyn Tate helps Mrs. Campbell keep the library running smoothly.

This is the dumbest pic they ever took! marla mcdaniel

Gazing through current magazines provides students with both entertainment and knowledge. Taking a break from the normal study hall routine are Marla McDaniel and Don Swearingen as they read their favorite periodicals.

Boys taking home economics discovered that cleaning up is a part of cooking. With their hands in dishwater are Gene Fulwider, Steve Plank, and Gary Huxhold.

Brewing a special treat are Amy Harper, Lynn Ross, and Kathy Vice.

Homemaking Students Fix Exotic Dishes

While Dorothy Detchon scans the cookbook for an interesting recipe, Nancy Grimes begins the preparation of ingredients they will need.

Learning to cook exotic dishes and sew beautiful clothes are two primary goals of every future housewife. Home economics courses offered at CHS exposed both boys and girls to practical homemaking skills.

Dishes from foreign lands tested the skills of each girl as she sought to prepare the ideal meal. The choice of sewing endeavors was left to the girls, and their finished clothing reflected the essentials of style, color, and fabric.

Boys also learned the basics of these two arts in a semester home economics course.

Mrs. Jones, Dorothy—Homemaking 1-6, FHA Sponsor. Mrs. Remely, Mary—Biology 1-2, Homemaking (Boys) 3-4, FHA Sponsor.

Mr. Ayers, Michael—English 3, 5-6, Speech Team Sponsor. Mrs. Cantrell, Martha—English 7-8, 7-8H.

Mrs. Herr, Eleanor—English 7-8. Miss Lewis, Barbara—English 4, 5-6, Drama.

Miss Mandleco, Phyllis—English 4A, 4H, 5-6H, Sophomore Class Advisor. Mr. McAninch, Merrill—English 5-6, Journalism, Library (AV), Gold & Blue.

Mr. Nelson, Edward—Speech 1-2, English 3, 3A, 3H, Speech Team Sponsor.

Students Learn to Express

Making collages is the last thing on the minds of these senior Honors English students as they concentrate on finishing their six-weeks exam.

Miss Lewis directs drama students Alison Baker and Dolly McClamroch in one of the more action-packed scenes from Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice.

Themselves

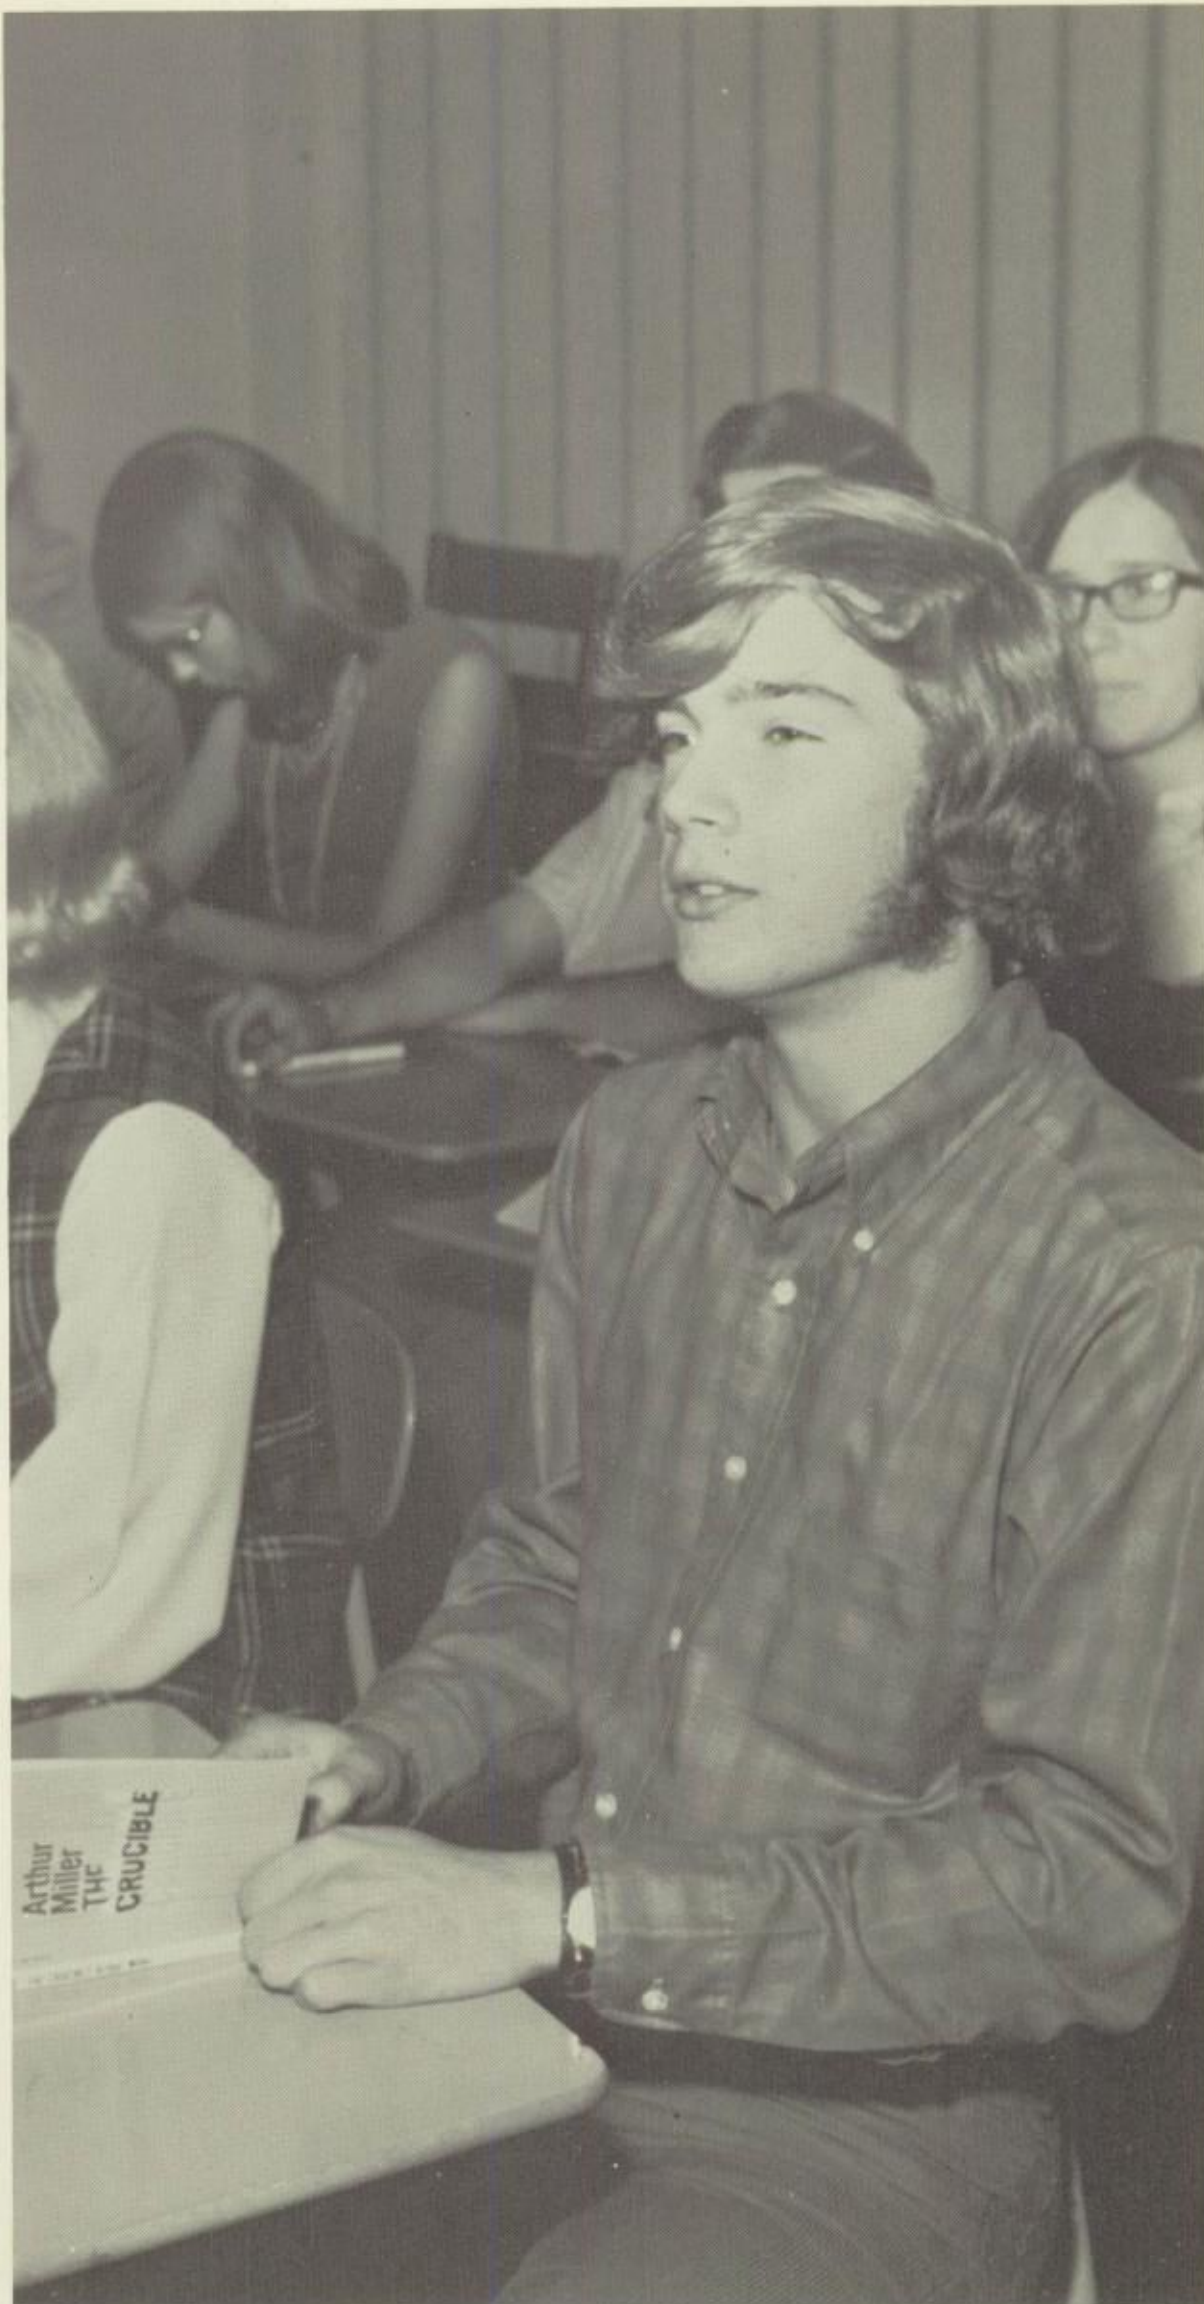

New courses enhanced the English department's program this year. Reading and comparing different plays was the objective of the newly formed drama class. The dramatics class provided interested students with a background in theatrical production. The department also initiated Honors English courses for sophomores and juniors.

The teachers encouraged students to express themselves through writing and speaking in English, journalism, speech, and creative writing exercises, and class discussions were all parts of the plan to help students develop communications skills as well as the ability to think creatively.

Mrs. Cunningham, Linda—English 4, 5-6, Varsity Cheerleader Sponsor, Pep Block Sponsor. Mrs. McCoy, Jane—English 5-6A, Creative Writing, National Honor Society Sponsor.

Taking advantage of a small class, Mr. Nelson conducts a discussion with his Advanced Speech students on rhetoric in democracy.

Raoul Moore listens to an introduction of The Crucible, one of the many books read in Junior English.

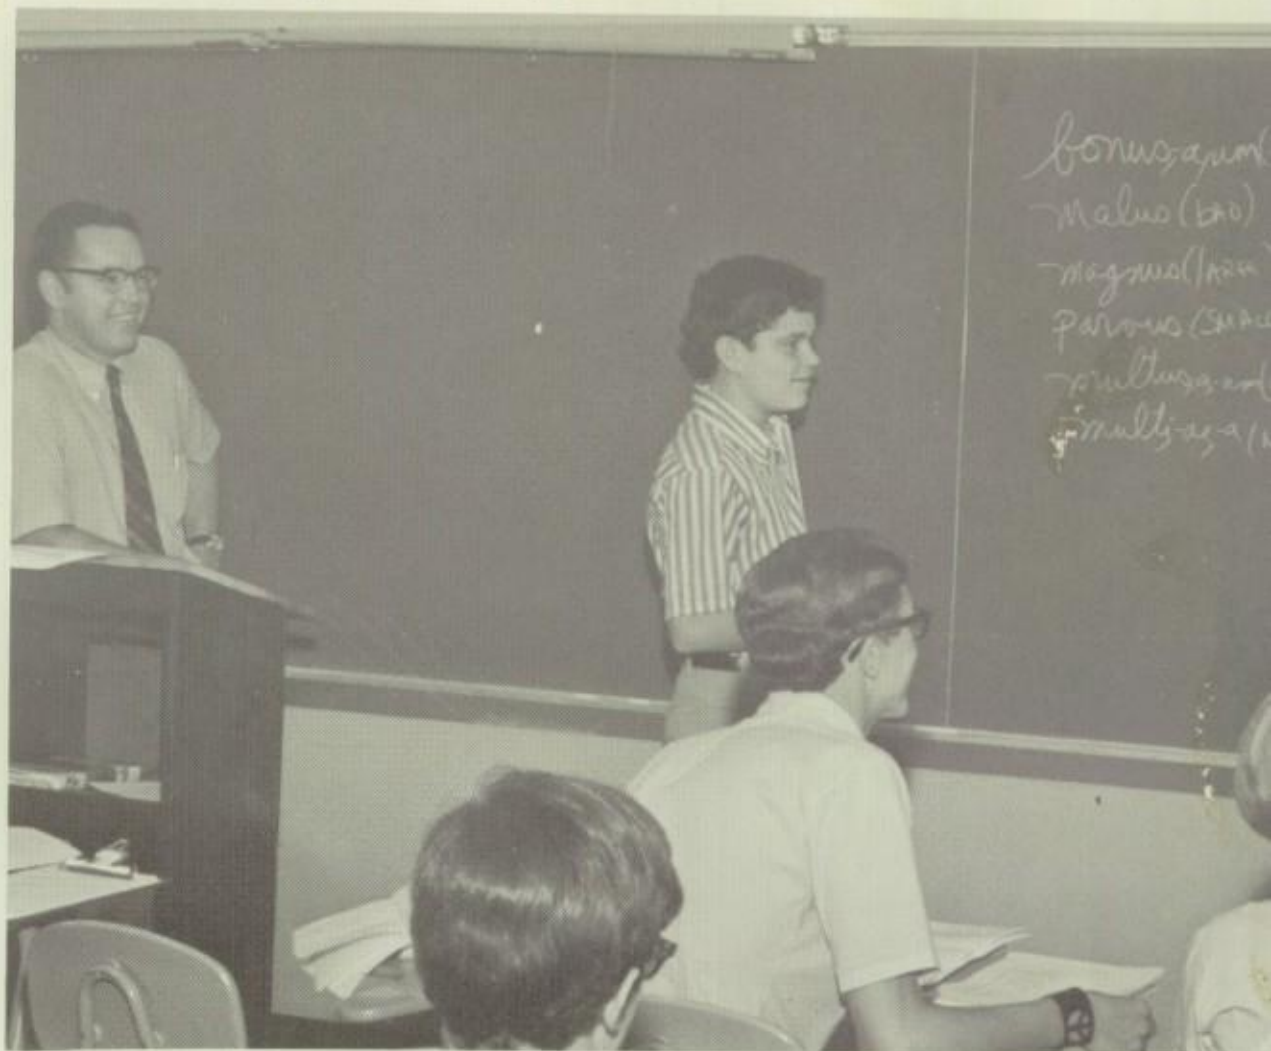

Bonne chance dans le futur. Soyez sage et heureuse. A bientôt, M^{me} Howlett Mrs. Britton, Marilyn—Spanish 3-8, Spanish Club Sponsor. Mrs. Howlett, Darla—French 1-6, French Club Sponsor.

Mr. Kain, Steven—Latin 3-4, U.S. History 1-2, Athletic Faculty Manager, Pep Block Sponsor. Mrs. Kudlaty, Joan—Spanish 1-4.

Although Latin is a dead language, Latin classes are very much alive. An explanation of adjectives is being given by Mike Bushong and Dave Black.

Spanish students Jeff Wilde, Mary Millis, Mike Gould, and Anne Alexander find that conversation is a good way to improve pronunciation and vocabulary.

Amy Pumroy gazes at her reflection in a mirror to check the position of her lips and tongue.

Cultural Studies Enhance Language Classes at CHS

Mary Scott finds the language lab both a monster and a help in trying to pronounce her French correctly.

Students increased their knowledge of foreign cultures and languages in French, Spanish, and Latin classes. Combined programs of history, grammar and literature provided students with a diversified background in each language.

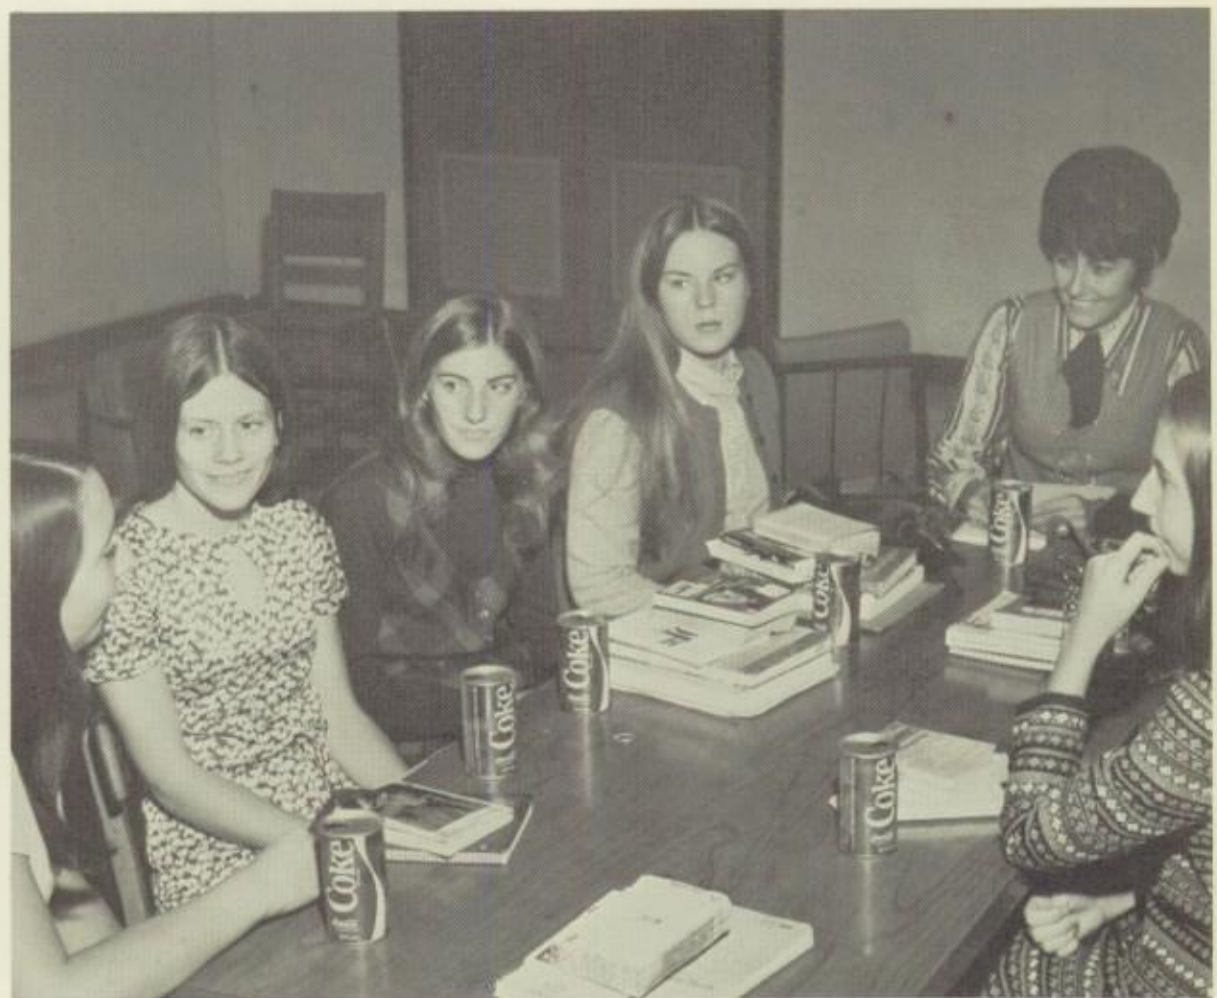

French students wrote themes, gave speeches, and worked in the language lab to improve their "français." Word games supplied a break from the classroom routine as students struggled to expand their vocabulary.

In addition to the tasks of conjugating and translating, Latin students delved into Roman history and literature through readings and films depicting the ancient times.

The Spanish classes investigated various cultures of Spanish speaking countries by studying their history and literature. Interested students attended a Spanish classical guitar concert at Purdue. The fourth year class went to Chicago in the spring to view Spanish art.

Forming vowels in French class with help of a mirror is a funny and trying experience for Ann.

While members of Mrs. Britton's fourth year Spanish class look on, Karen Jackson discusses the satisfaction from drinking coke during class.

Self-Expression Essential in Art, Music

Having used velvet as a painting surface, art students Tom Keese, Debbie Johnson, Judy Stoddard, and Jerry Whicker complete the projects by mounting their works of art.

Instruments blared, voices were raised, and the sculpture was completed. These were the arts at CHS.

The past year music students perfected compositions for contest participation while specially selected ensembles performed regularly for local organizations and school convocations. Football games would have been incomplete without the band.

Art students were not to be forgotten. The traditional sculpturing and painting were only a small part of the means of expression employed in art classes. Independent, specially formulated projects composed the classroom work of more advanced students. All students sought an effective means of self-expression through various artistic representations.

Art students copy design from the chalkboard as part of a freehand sketching exercise.

First period brings music to the halls of CHS. Hal McGaughey, Dan Davis, Larry Brewer, Jim Smith and Linda Kingry burst forth into a band number.

Mrs. Gross, Martha—Art 1-6, Palletiers Sponsor. Mr. Magner, Rex—
Choir, Glee Club, Band, Tri-M Sponsor.
Mr. Ruby, Russell—Band, Choir, Tri-M
Sponsor.

Working intensely, Allen Anderson attaches the mouthpiece to his trumpet in preparation for band practice.

With a steady hand, Bob Rutledge paints the finishing touches on his latest project, a colorful poster.

Social Studies Lab Encourages Research

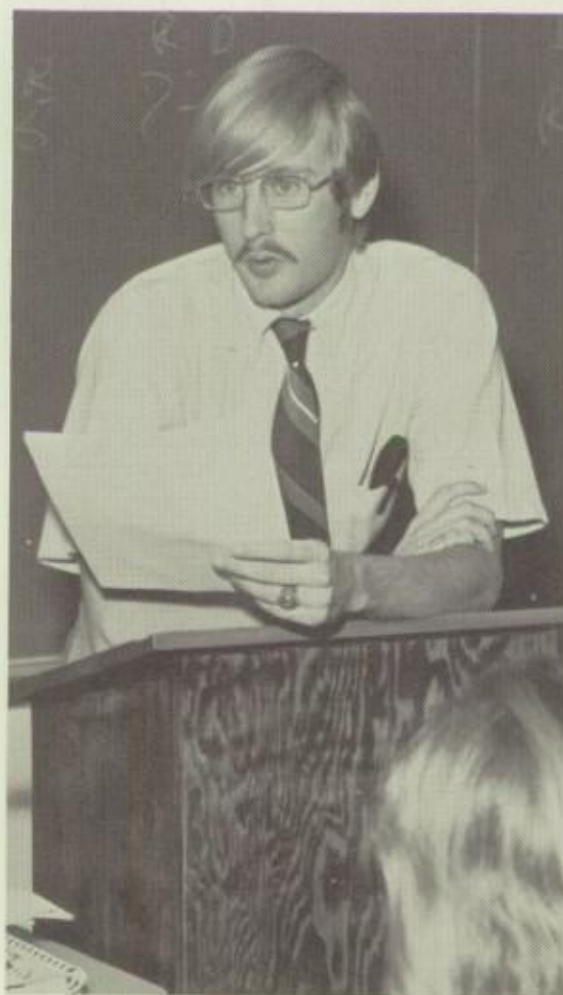

Concentrating on the record they hear, Karen Jackson and Barb Zach make use of the new teaching innovation in the social studies department—the lab.

Adding a new dimension to the social studies department this year was the social studies lab. The lab contained reading materials, film strips, and new supplementary aids to help the social studies students. Interested seniors scheduled a daily period in the lab to work on independent study projects in one of the social studies areas.

This year economics and government classes studied under a newly organized curriculum. In place of team-teaching, the U.S. History teachers met with the junior history classes individually. Along with the ancient history of the past, world history students concentrated on the explosive events of the last decade and their effect on future history. For the second year in a row the sociology classes went to Chicago to study some of the urban social problems. Psychology students explored the human mind in relation to human behavior and impulses.

Mr. Avery, Don—U.S. History 1-2, World History 1-2, Assistant Football Coach, Wrestling Coach. Mr. Burgess, Robert Jr.—U.S. History 1-2, Sociology, FTA Sponsor.

One of CHS's student teachers, Mr. Jeffrey Young, lectures to a government class about charisma.

Mr. Clouse, Richard—U.S. History 1-2, Psychology, Tennis Coach, Junior Class Adviser. Mr. Gentry, Steve—Government, Student Council Sponsor.

Mr. Lebedeff, Alex—Economics, Foreign Fellowship Sponsor. Mr. Saueraman, Joe—U.S. History 1-2, Geography, National Honor Society Sponsor.

To most students, geometric shapes are puzzling, but Chris Priebe appears to be quite an expert.

Senior math problems prove to be a difficult task as Larry Epperson erases his work to try again.

Mr. Curtis, Paul—Plane Geometry 1-2, Algebra 1-2, Assistant Football Coach, Basketball Coach, Golf Coach. Mr. Dawson, George—Calculus, Senior Math 1-2, Algebra 5. Mr. Whitehead, Bruce—Algebra 3-4, 3-4A, ABC Sponsor.

Contest Problems Baffle Math Students

A typical day finds Mr. Curtis attempting to explain the principles of geometry to an interested class, hoping they can then prove a theorem.

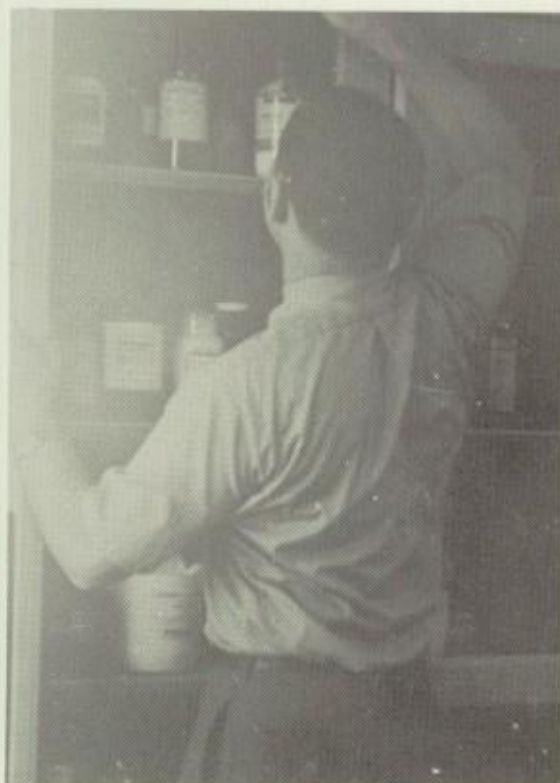

The magic of mathematics has long been a source of frustration and puzzlement for high school students. Whether CHS students were enrolled in geometry, algebra, senior math, or calculus, they recognized the challenge posed by mathematics and met this challenge, spending long hours deciphering textbook explanations and formulating proofs for theorems and axioms.

Students interested in problem solving sharpened their skills to a pinnacle, hoping to do well in the twenty-second National High School Math Contest in March, 1971. Competition on this test was composed of high school students all across the nation. Outstanding participants received national recognition for their achievement.

Science Students Acquire Knowledge of Our World

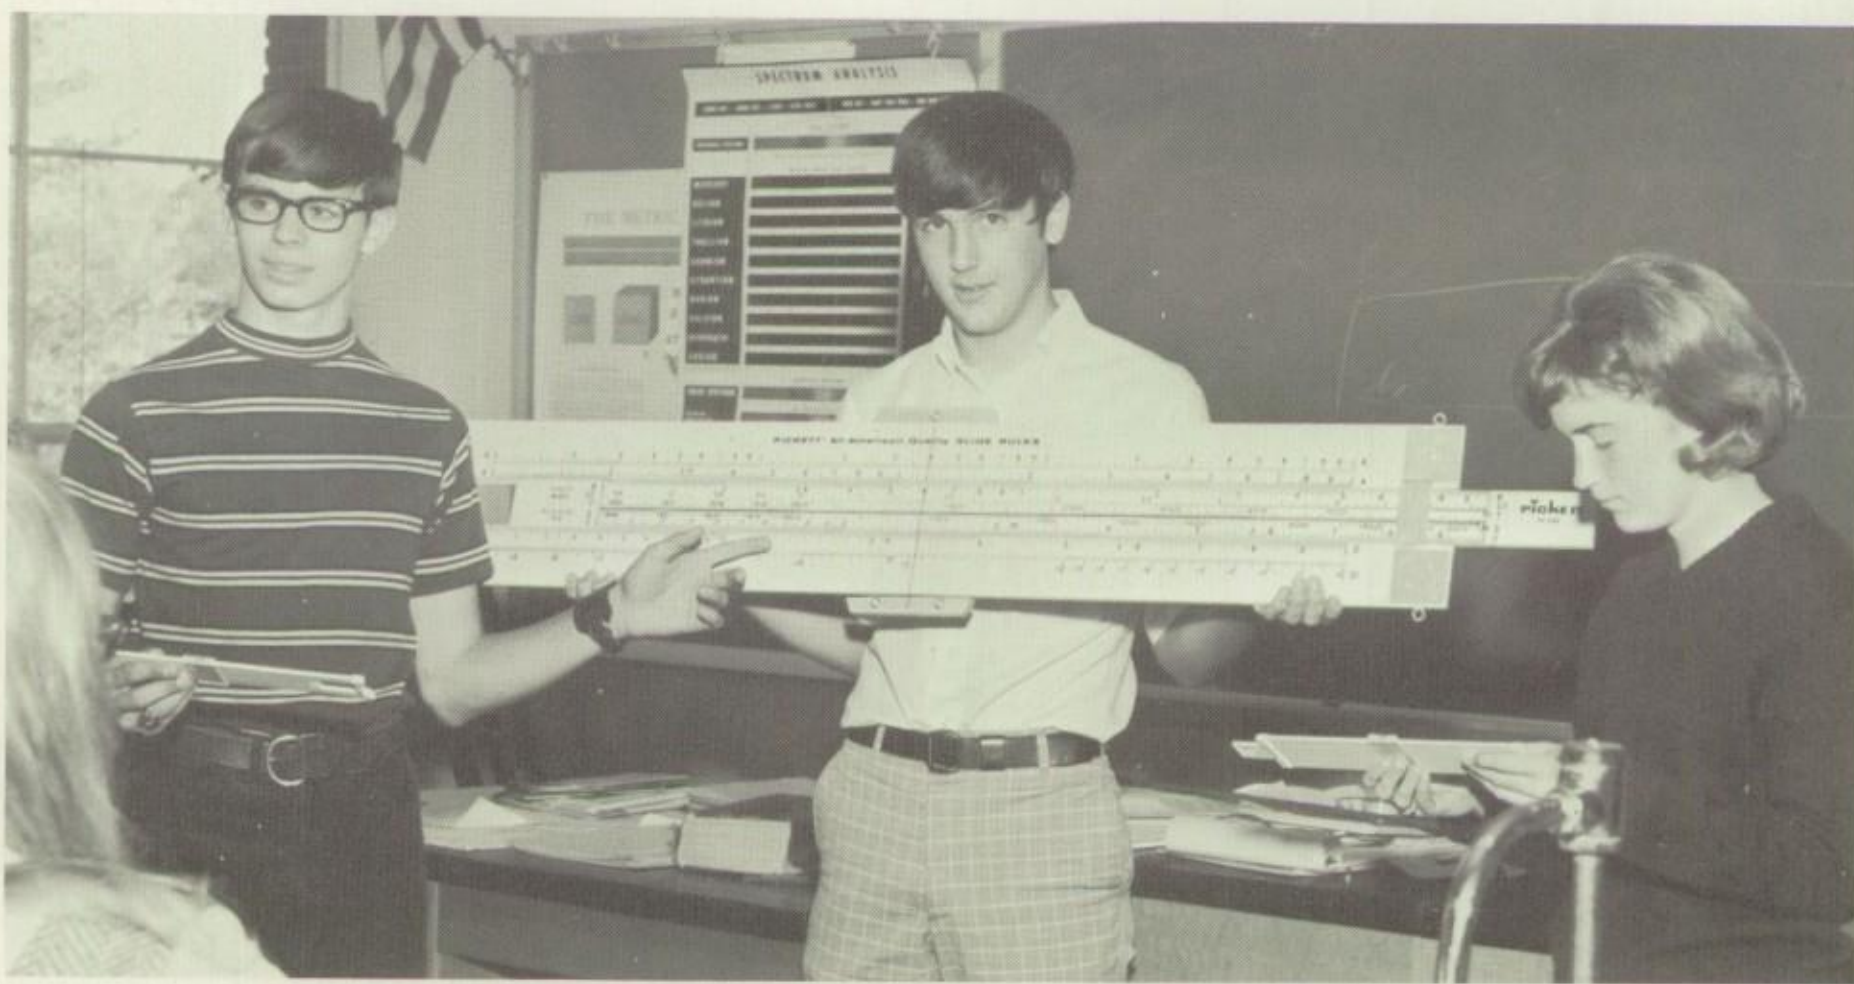

Science Topics provides a course for hard-working science students. Here Jeff Trefz and Pat McGaughey prepare chemicals for a lab.

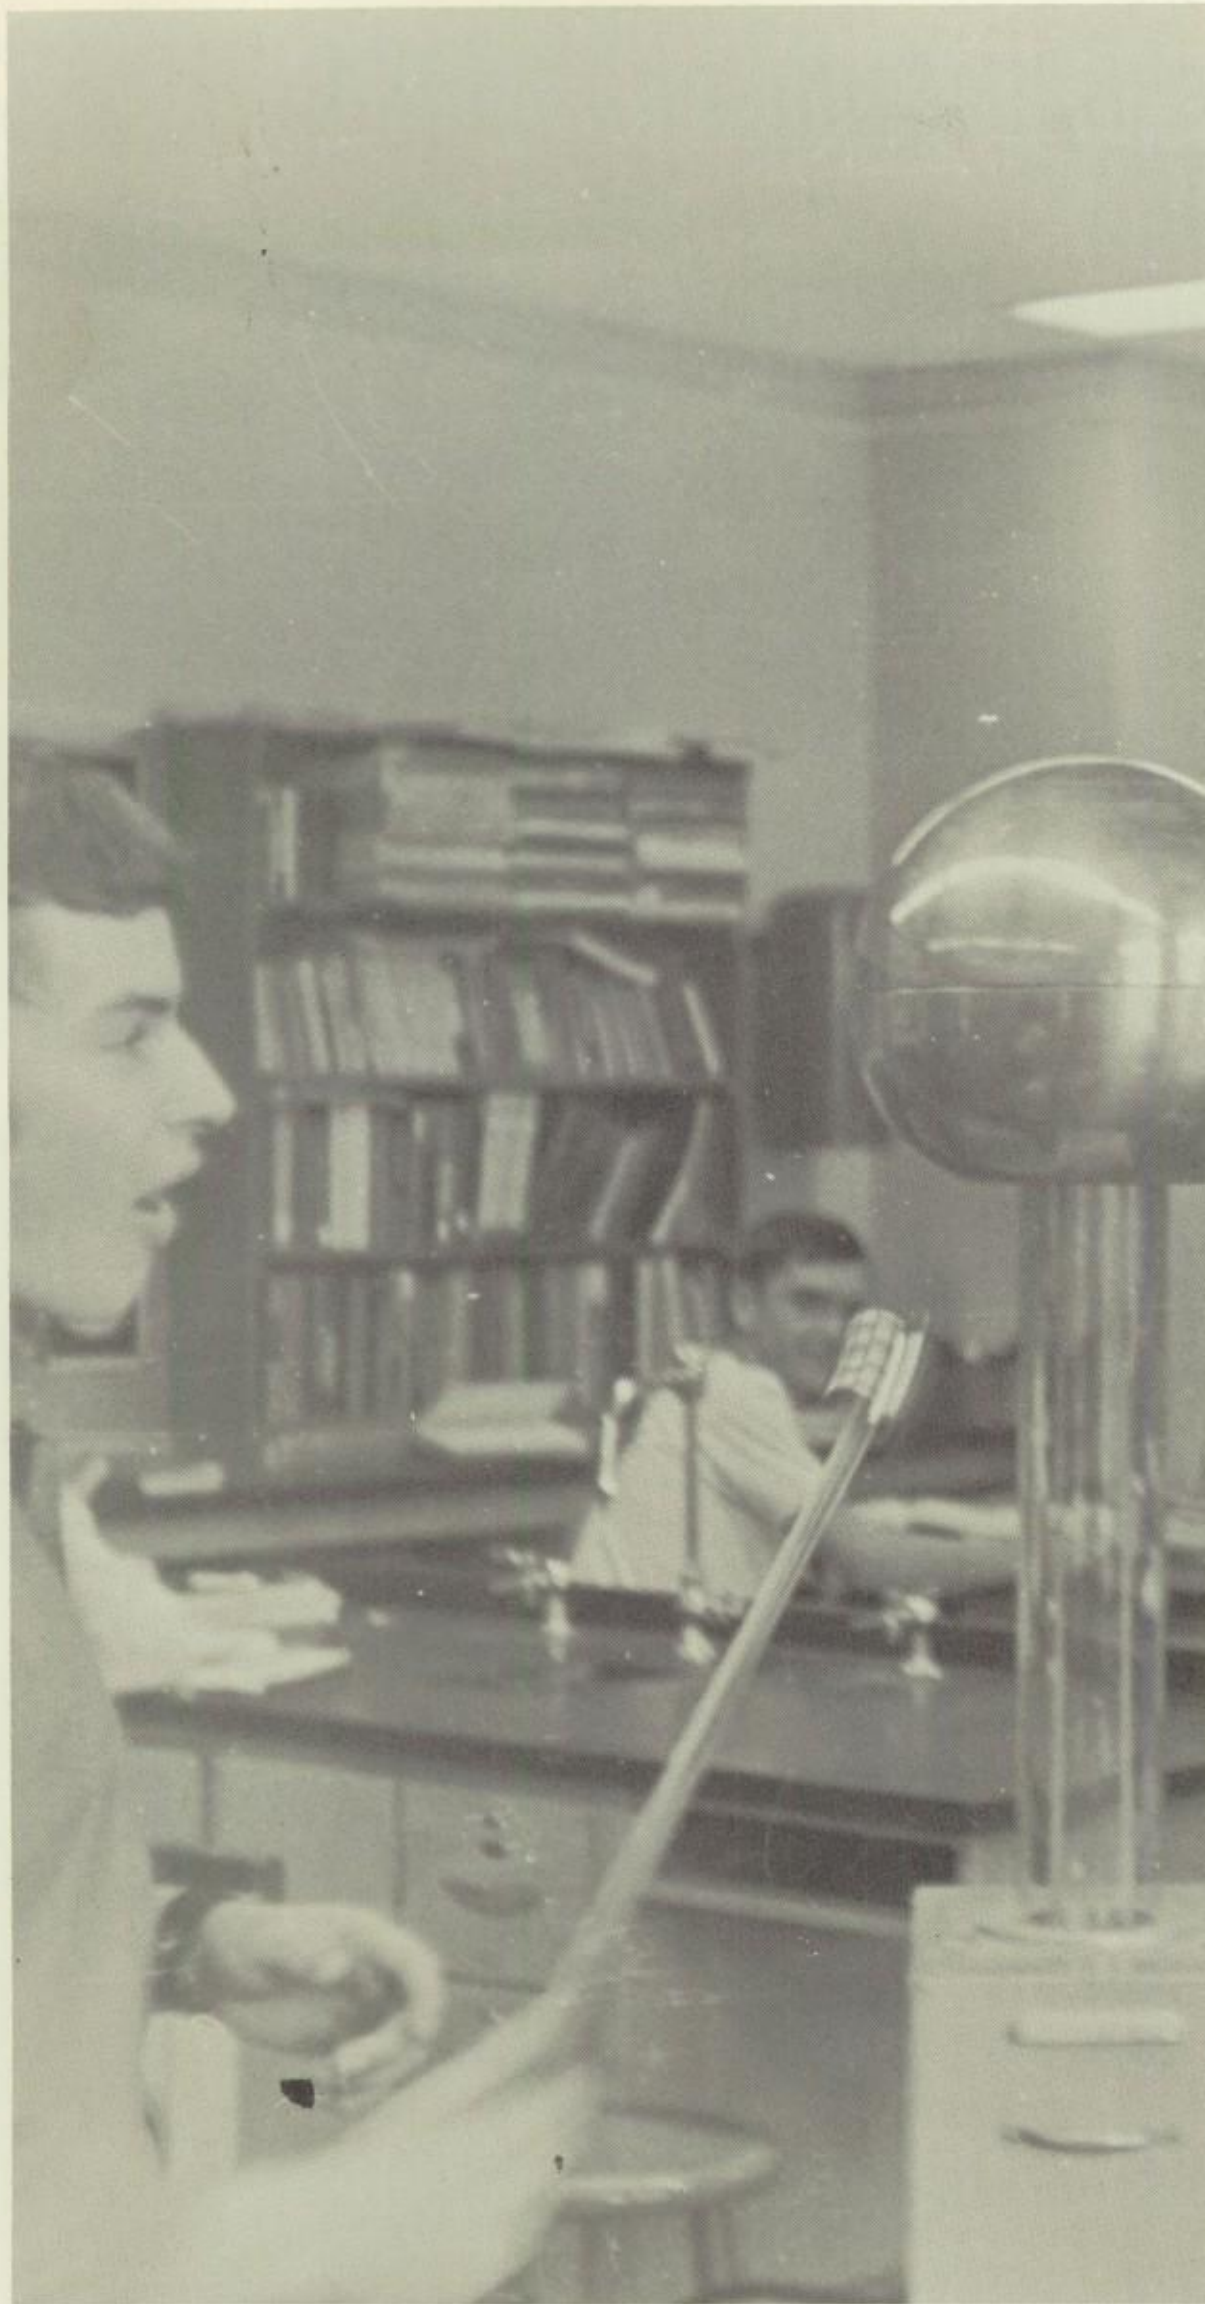

Searching for the correct chemicals, science teacher Ray Seale finds that the shelves are too high to reach.

A cloud of smoke billowed out the door of room 202 yet no one seemed too concerned. An unpleasant odor pervaded the north hall on the upper floor, and students refused to enter their classrooms. This was science in motion at CHS.

Such experiments were not uncommon lab assignments in our science department. Two years of biology, introductory physical science, chemistry, physics, and science topics gave students a wide variety of subject matter from which they chose their desired course of study. Throughout the year students discovered more about the world around them and more about themselves by delving into textbooks, seeing films, listening to lectures, and applying their knowledge in laboratory situations.

Chemistry students Mike Kenyon, Tom Hannaford, and Vicki Demoret demonstrate how to use the slide rule to add speed and accuracy to problem solving.

Physics offers many amazing pieces of equipment for the education of its students. Here Louis Chieppo investigates the principles of static electricity.

*Best Wishes
Bill Richmond*

Mr. Richmond, William—Biology 1-2, 3-4, ABC I Sponsor. Mr. Seale, Ray—Science Topics 1-2, Chemistry 1-2, Up-N-Atom Sponsor, Photography Club Sponsor, Mr. Thompson, Steve—Physical Science 1-2, Physic 1-2, Up-N-Atom Sponsor.

Sandy Grush and Dave Peterman find labs in biology are true learning experiences.

Shop Classes Gain Valuable Experience

In a predominately male class, Diane Treacy learns the principles of drafting and sketches her findings.

Mr. Armbruster, Don—Drafting 1-2, 3-4, 5, Sophomore Class Advisor. Mr. Hazlett, John R.—Machine Shop 1-4, Wood 1-2, Junior Class Advisor. Mr. Maesch, Leo—Wood Shop 1-2, ICT, 1-2, 3-4, Coordinator.

Combining their creative instincts with technical skills, the boys in the industrial arts department acquired valuable experience in the fields of drafting, electronics, wood working, and mechanics. The humming of machinery and the smell of wood shavings directed the attention of students to the various shops in CHS.

The printing classes gained experience as they set the type for each issue of the Gold and Blue. Electronics students made their own radios. Using their creative know-how and advice from their instructors, the boys in wood shop made attractive pieces of furniture. Budding engineers and architects faced the demanding assignments in drafting classes that emphasized the importance of accuracy. The students in machine shop learned about various types of machines and how to build and repair them.

Sanding cars at Horner's Corner is a part of every school day for junior Mark Haderle.

The fascinating workings of machines intrigue John Lyons as he completes a project in metal shop.

Mr. Ryker, Charles—Prints Shop 1-4. Mr. Winiger, Gary—Electronics 1-4, Wood Shop 3-4.

Combining hard work, skill, and precision, Terry Long alters the width of a board to be used in a shop project. Completed projects and excellent grades reward shop students for their diligence and concentration.

COE Combines Classes With On the Job Training

A senior enrolled in COE, Vickie Pad-dack listens to an explanation by Mrs. Martha Stout, secretary to Mayor William H. Hays, in whose office Vickie works.

Mrs. Servies, Florence—Typing 3-4, COE Coordinator, Yearbook Advisor, Sunshine Society Sponsor. Mrs. Vice, Linda—Business English, Shorthand 3-4, Typing 1-2, Sunshine Society Sponsor.

The Business Department initiated a new program that provided students with occupational training at the high school level. Cooperative Office Education allowed students to combine their regular class schedules in local businesses.

Keeping their eyes on the copy as they concentrated on the home row of keys, typing students acquired one of the basic skills taught by the business teachers. Shorthand students spent many hours taking dictation in the shorthand lab while the students in business classes explored various facets of the business world from consumer economics to business law.

Mr. Fiedler, Charles—Personal Typing, Bookkeeping 1-2, Introduction to Business, Cross Country Coach, B-Team Coach. Miss Mershon, Karen—Typing 1-2, Introduction to Business, Business Law, Consumer Economics, Health Careers Club Sponsor.

Miss Newkirk, Janet—Bookkeeping 1-2, Personal Typing, Introduction to Business, Sophomore Class Sponsor. Mrs. Runge, Mary E.—Shorthand 1-2, Introduction to Business, Typing 3-4, Sunshine Society Sponsor.

Away from the sound of bells and carriage returns, Nancy Helm types with the help of headphones.

Using living and dead, Terri Meade points out parts of the body on Donna Sager and "Bones."

P.E., Driver's Ed. Students Develop Various Skills

With Herculean strength muscle-bound members of a boys' physical education class show off.

Skill and dexterity were assets in physical education classes but enthusiasm and good sportsmanship played an important role also. Lively games and challenging stunts sparked the interests of CHS students. Classroom work taught them the basic principles of first aid and prepared them to handle emergencies which they might face at home and elsewhere. Personal appearance and good grooming habits were the focal points of discussions in health classes.

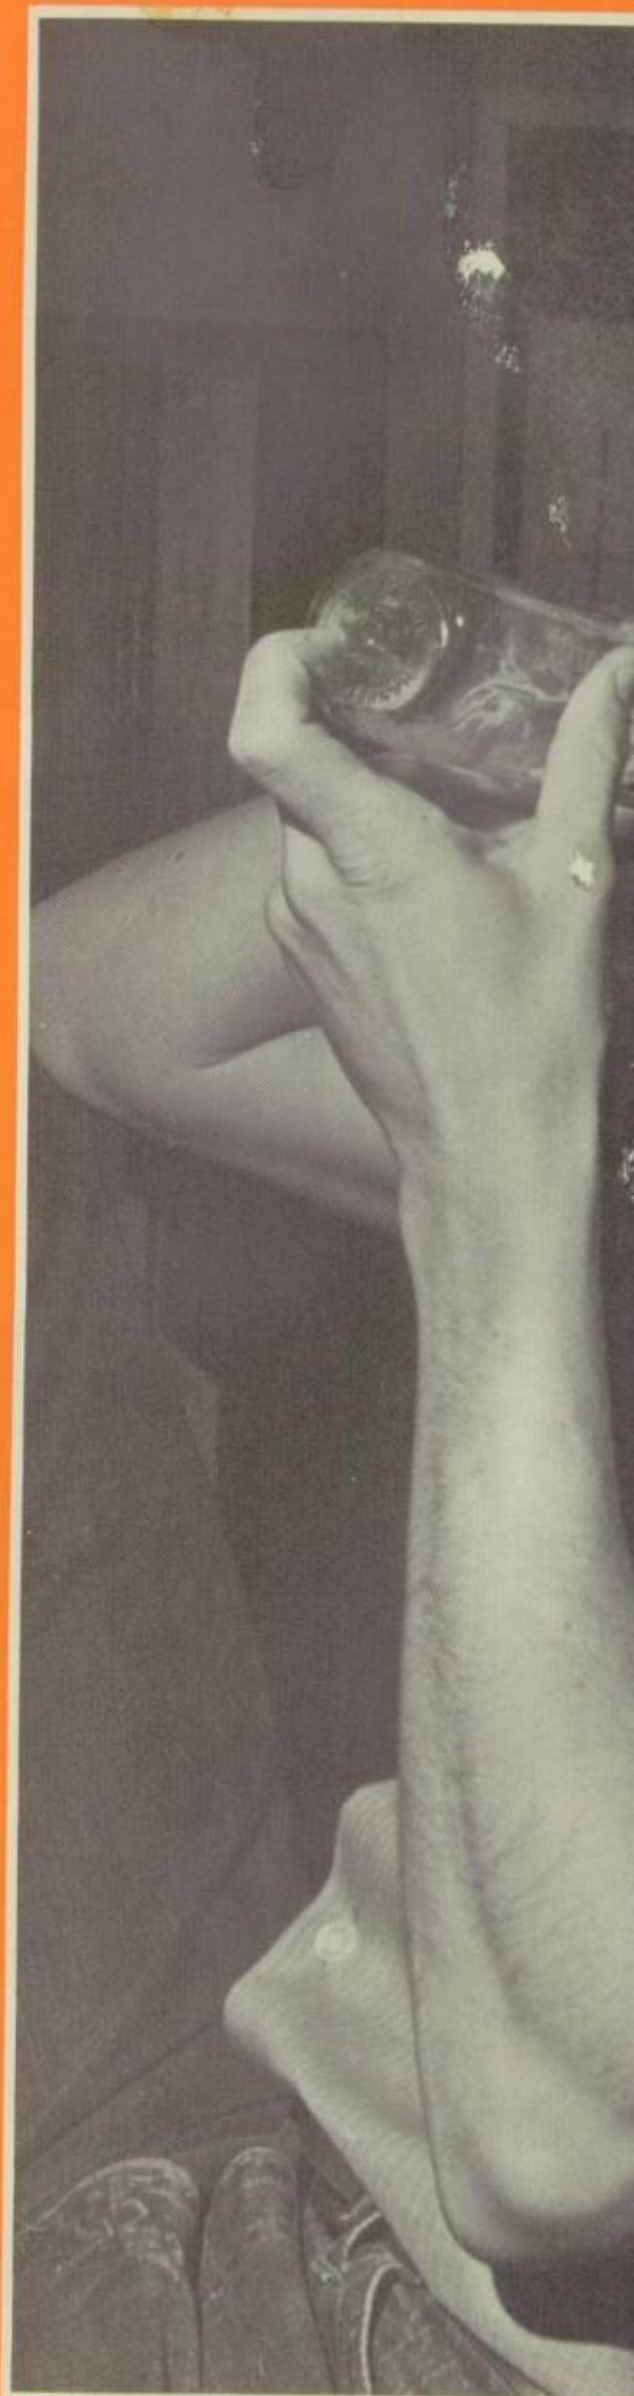

For those students anxious to get behind the wheel, driver's education gave them a chance to learn driving skills and highway safety practices. Bookwork and practical training constituted their course which climaxed with the passing of tests and the receiving of licenses.

Mr. Knecht, Glenn—Algebra 1-2, Drivers Ed, Football Coach, Track Coach. Miss Davidson, Marilyn—Girls P.E., Health & Safety, GAA Sponsor. Mr. Motz, Larry—Boys PE, Health & Safety, ABC II Sponsor, Baseball Coach.

Under the watchful eye of Mr. Knecht, Mary Beach prepares herself for a long hour of driving.

Reminiscing about their memorable experiences as senior class officers are Carolyn Hartman, secretary; Garth Dickey, president; Phil Churchill, vice-president; and Kris Eggers, treasurer.

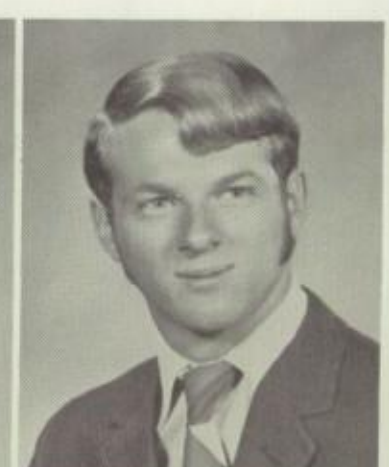

Slowly the last days of high school slipped by, and seniors found themselves gazing forward to graduation and beyond. Now each activity of their senior year is a memory of their final year at CHS.

First there was the senior float which provided the class of '71 with its second first place finish. Election week resulted in a third party, diligent campaigning, and true-to-life conventions. It seemed the year had just begun when semester tests rolled around and the second semester began. Senior thoughts turned to choosing the right college or career, and every senior started planning for that glorious day of graduation from CHS.

Red Party Splits Senior Class Vote

Excitement, frustration, and anticipation register on the faces of members of the blue party, as they participate in the senior election. Here John Runge is making a nominating speech for Jim Tinsley, one of the nominees for the blue party vice-presidential candidacy. After many speeches and serious consideration of each nominee, a slate of candidates was chosen to proudly represent the blue party.

Boy Staters are (counterclockwise): R. Thompson, D. Booker, P. Roberts, L. Palmer, J. Tinsley, and C. McCarthy. Paul Little was elected Senate Majority Leader, and Jeff Arvin also attended.

Deanna Wilson and Cindy Biddle find school to be quiet compared to the constant activity of Girls' State. Also representing CHS was Kathy Trosper.

"Only a Moment . . ."

David Timothy Thayer
(1953-1970)

Through the hourglass of time
Pass these tiny grains of sand,
Each a man, knowing joy, knowing sorrow,
Tasting life, then living death.
Giving all to those he loves,
Each one learns the lessons of life—
The disappointments and the tears,
The warmth of happy, smiling
faces,
Childhood dreams and fairy tales
Materializing in grownup minds.

Hopes, desires, goals to grasp,
Leading men through the days of life.
One last smile, one last tear,
Each grain must say farewell,
Then seep through time's hourglass
To the unknown depths of Fate.
Guided there by His firm hand,
Each one learns the lesson taught—
Death is the birth of eternal life.

Junior Float—A Disappointing Third

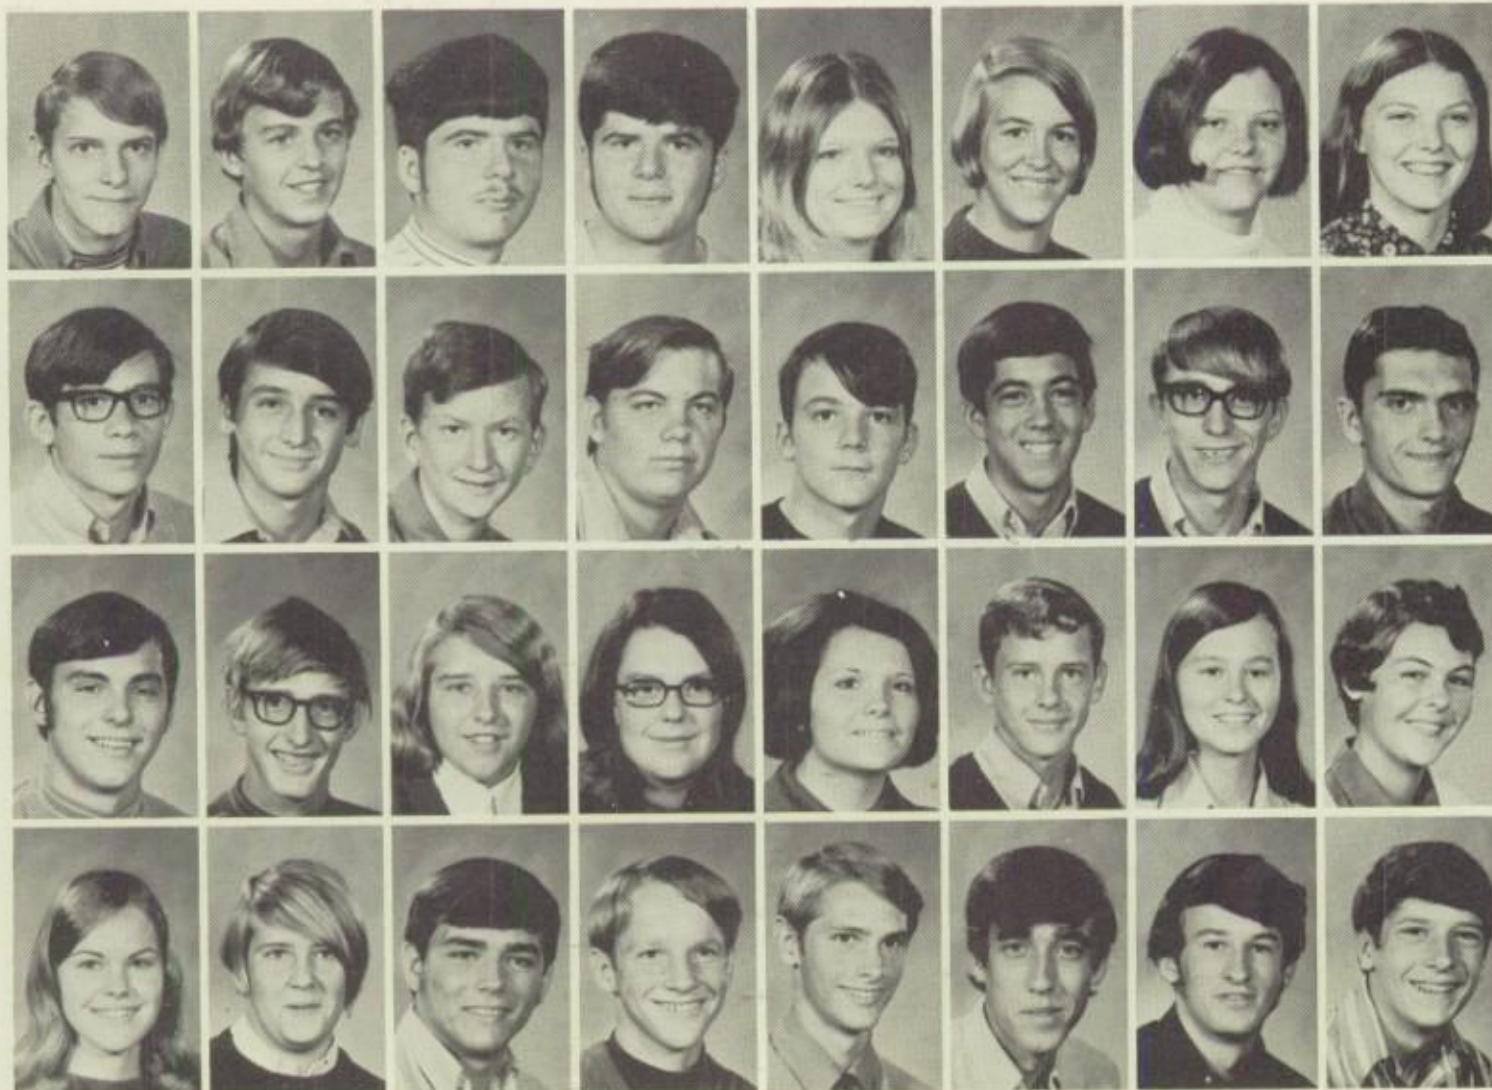

Expectant are Junior Class officers Cheryl Barcus, treasurer; Karen McCormick, secretary; Jack O'Neill, vice-president; and Jim Hall, president.

Juniors found their second year at CHS to be both exciting and challenging.

The Class of '72 worked diligently to get their float ready. Despite their clever theme, "We Shoot Horses Don't We" the juniors were unable to capture first place in the Homecoming competition for the second consecutive year.

Sighs of relief were never more appropriate than after the completion of the SAT and the NMSQT by college-bound members of the class. After those challenging tests, juniors were ready for the more pleasant task of planning the Junior-Senior Prom. The Class of '72 proved itself to be quite capable by providing both juniors and seniors with a memorable night.

Class of '73 Takes Its Place at CHS

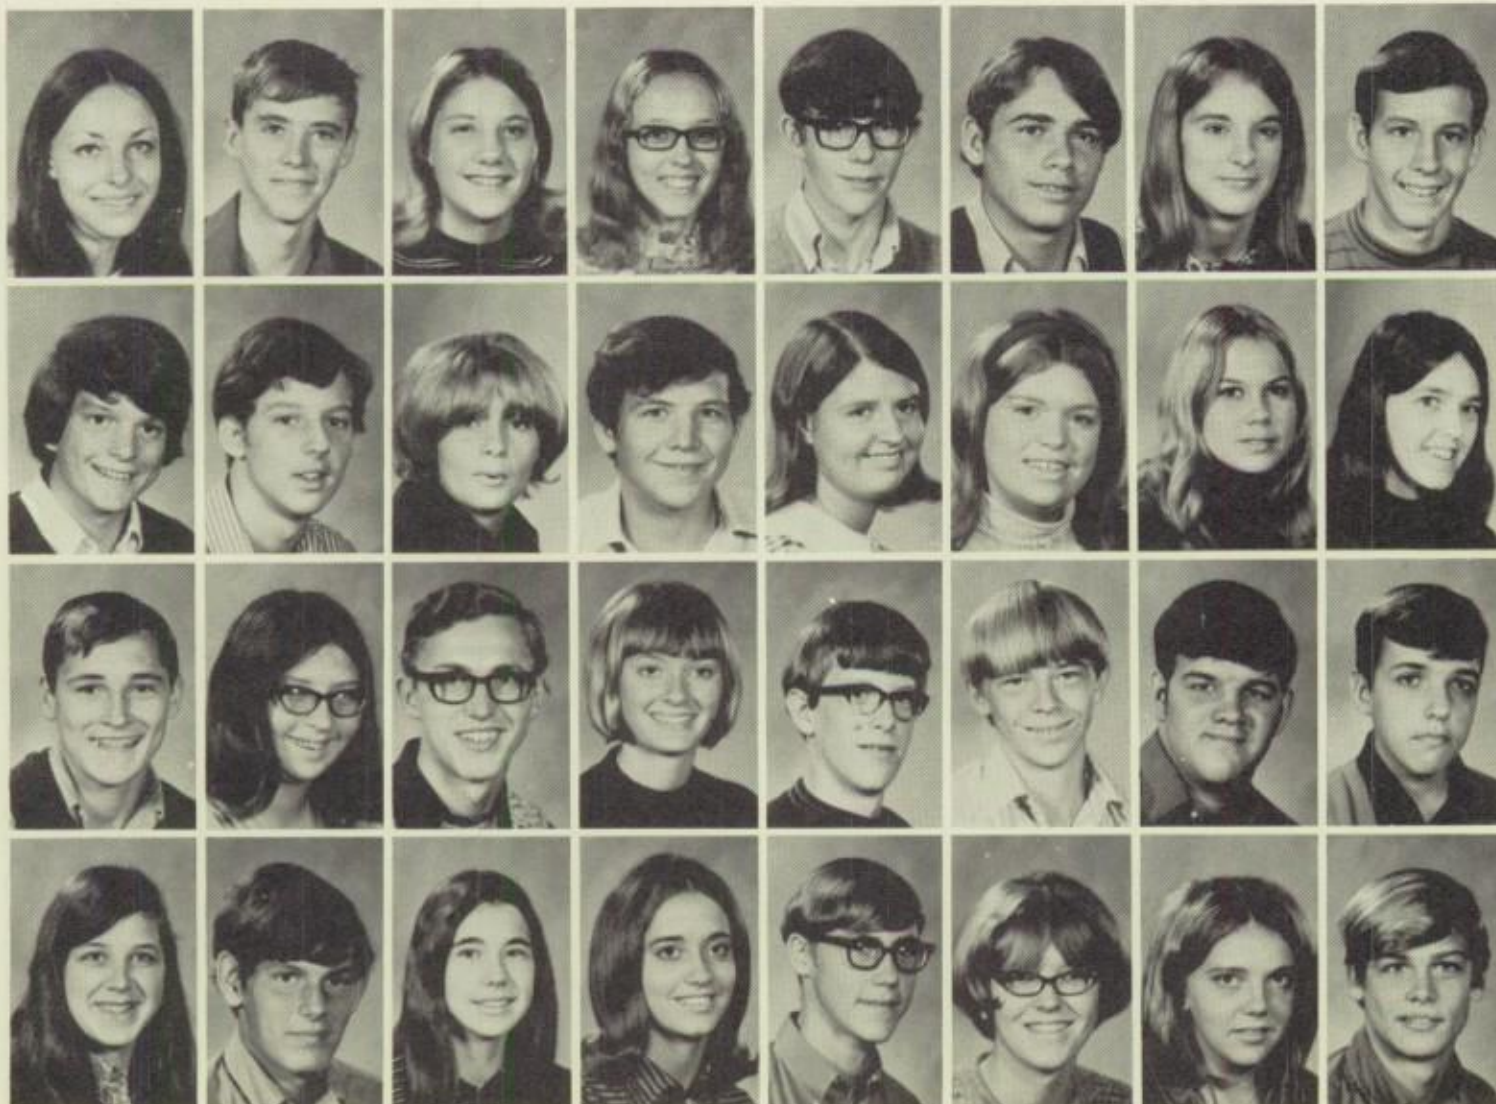

Chris Tucker, sophomore president, gives a helping hand to his officers Sally Todd, vice-president; Mindy Eggers, treasurer; and Cindy Smith, secretary.

The Class of '73 easily adapted itself to the daily routine at CHS. It was only a matter of time before the sophomores learned their way around and became an integral part of the swarming classes and after school.

Adding a spark to school spirit, sophomores enthusiastically joined in class cries and relays during pep sessions. They provided stiff competition for the juniors and seniors when the time came to see which class could yell the loudest and most spiritedly.

Still demonstrating their ability to work together as a team, the newcomers to CHS won second place in homecoming with the theme "Can 'Em".

Council Involvement Leads to Changes

Student Council officers Jean Blackwell, treasurer; Debbie Clark, secretary; and Mike Fox, vice-president, listen to last minute instructions from Paul Little, president, before a conference with the administration.

Stimulated by new ideas and active representatives, this year's Student Council proved to be the best energetic council in recent CHS history. Revising the dress code, improving study halls, and renovating the student lounge were just a few of the topics discussed and acted upon during the weekly meetings. The council also strived to keep communication lines open between the students and the administration. This effort helped to cultivate a better atmosphere for learning.

Student Council not only worked to improve student government, but also initiated extracurricular activities for the student body. The Student-Faculty Talent Show and feature length movies formed the nucleus of these activities. These projects helped finance the renovation of the student lounge.

NHS Purchases Senior Honor Cords

Scholarship and leadership were the two criteria used in selecting the new members of National Honor Society. Approximately fifteen juniors and thirty seniors were inducted into the organization this year.

Although it is more of an honorary society than an active club, the members of NHS volunteered to tutor other students at CHS. By contacting Mrs. McCoy, the sponsor, a student could get help in almost any subject from his fellow class mates.

At the end of the school year, NHS was responsible for purchasing the silver and gold honor cords for seniors with a three point grade average or better. The society also donated some of its money to the Foreign Fellowship Club to help defray the cost of sponsoring a foreign exchange student from Brazil.

Taking charge of Honor Society are officers Larry Palmer, vice-president; Mike Cornell, president; and Betsy Dreyer, secretary-treasurer.

Many and varied were the activities of the CHS choir the past year. Under the direction of Mr. Rex Magner, choir members improved their vocal skills and combined their talents with other students to form an excellent choir.

Individuals received recognition through participation in regional and state contests. Many students were honored by selection to the All-State choir. This choir performed at Clowes Hall in Indianapolis. Members of the choir also participated in the school musical. Girl's Chorus, Sophomore Glee Club, Madrigals, and Mixed Ensembles were an important part of school convocations.

Up-N-Atom Probes Scientific Questions

Up-N-Atom officers are: Richard Zachary, sgt.-at-arms; Paul Roberts, vice-president; Charles McCarthy, secretary; and Steve Lewellen, president.

Future scientists at CHS and other students with a genuine interest in the sciences formed the membership of Up-N-Atom Club. Each member was given an opportunity to pursue the field of science that interested him most. Various experiments demonstrated the club's accomplishments while guest speakers told the club about their experiences and knowledge in several fields.

Up-N-Atom found little time for money-making projects. Its major concern was the individual students in the club. The furthering of their scientific education was in the minds of all as sponsors Mr. Thompson and Mr. Seale led the organization through another worthwhile year.

Speech Team—a Chance for Expression

Before the next meet officers, Sandy Mullen, captain of solo events; Cindy Biddle, president, and Donna Summerfield; captain of debate, make plans.

Membership in the CHS chapter of the National Forensic League grew as the more talkative students earned twenty-five NFL points in speech and debate competition. The team members forfeited their Saturdays and traveled many miles to represent CHS in tournaments throughout the state.

CHS hosted a solo meet in January. At that time high school students competed in eight events including: original oratory, impromptu, extemporaneous, poetry, discussion, oratorical declamation, and dramatic and humorous interpretation.

In October debaters arrived at CHS for the first big varsity tournament of the year. This year's topic on pollution control provided the debaters with a constant challenge.

Enthusiasm Enlarges Tri-M Membership

Confidence and fear are two emotions which choir member Jim Tinsley experiences before his solo performance.

A genuine interest in music and a desire to learn more about it are two qualities possessed by all members of Modern Music Masters. Selections to this organization is based on scholastic abilities, character, service, and activeness in contests.

As an honorary society, Tri-M did not sponsor any money-making projects. However they were not without responsibilities. Linking students from band and choir, this group helped to coordinate convocations and other activities. Its members formed the central core of the school musical and also received outstanding awards in several vocal and instrumental contests. In general, Tri-M represented the most enthusiastic of music students.

Palettiers Visit Chicago Art Museums

Art students at CHS found Palettiers an interesting and rewarding extracurricular activity. The pursuit of artistic knowledge and enjoyment of art itself were the main goals pursued by the students involved in Palettiers.

Under the leadership of the new art teacher, Mrs. Martha Gross, this club served not only the students but also the community.

The year's activities were climaxed by a two-day trip to Chicago where students toured museums and studied local art exhibits. A school-wide contest was another Palettier project.

At Christmas time, club members pleased young children throughout the community with toys that they had made and collected.

Leading Palettiers are: Barb Coplea, treasurer; Jan Dye, secretary; Bill Sikes, president; and David Lovold, vice-president.

Band Provides Musical Entertainment

The band officers are: Eugene Fulwider, president; Rodney Miller, drum major; Bonnie Rager, sgt.-at-arms; Debbie Vaught, secretary; and Allen Anderson, vice-president.

Under the direction of Mr. Russell Ruby, the CHS Marching Athenians displayed their musical talents throughout the year at football and basketball games, parades, music contests, and convocations. Band members spent many hours marching and working up routines at Hoover field. First period each day students and faculty could hear the band practicing everything from the "William Tell Overture" to "Frosty the Snowman."

Rodney Miller, drum major, led the band through its paces in the Veteran's Day Parade and the Christmas Parade. Following Rodney at parades and football games were the CHS twirlers and pom pom girls who added color and spirit to the band.

With poise and good form, Drum Major Rodney Miller demonstrates the posture and control needed to perform his duties well.

Gold and Blue Takes Stand on Issues

Outspoken editorials, original cartoons, and sport predictions comprised only part of the stimulating reading material in this year's issues of the Gold and Blue. Even though the Gold and Blue staff lacked experience in publishing a paper when school began, it did a more than adequate job as the year progressed.

Editor Paul Roberts, ably assisted by Kris Eggers, worked diligently to get the paper out on time. News Editor Garth Dickey kept the student body informed on important news items as well as upcoming movies. Junior Editor Nina Musselman and Feature Editor Cindy Gilmore provided the staff with ideas for interesting articles, while Paul Little and Jeff Arvin supplied intensive coverage of sports events at school and out.

The organizers behind the scenes of the Gold and Blue are: Garth Dickey, news editor; two little mice; Kris Eggers, assistant editor; and Paul Roberts, editor-in-chief.

FFC's Spaghetti Dinner Proves Profitable

Foreign Fellowship officers are: Nancy Dahl, vice-president; Sara Green, secretary; Kathy Trosper, president; Brad Ross, treasurer; and Debbie Clark, corresponding secretary.

To acquaint students with foreign cultures was one of the main objectives of Foreign Fellowship. In hopes of acquiring a foreign exchange student, this club's activities centered upon money-making projects that would provide the funds needed for his passage to the United States and his living expenses here.

A spaghetti dinner was the first major project. Club members drafted their parents to fix the food while members themselves provided advertising and manual labor.

Providing entertainment for students in the club and knowledge of foreign lands as well, guest speakers were invited to present a look at their native countries.

Assistants, Integral Part of Daily Life

Many people at CHS found student assistants to be an important asset in performing their daily activities and fulfilling their responsibilities.

Students, representing all classes, relinquished their study halls to aid the counselors' office, the administrative office, the nurse's office, and the library. Counselors' assistants spent their time helping to keep order in the office and running errands. The job of office helpers involved delivering messages to students and teachers. Those aiding the librarian helped students find needed materials and check them out. Nurse's assistants aided Mrs. Tinsley in curing students' ills.

OEA (Business Club) Organized at CHS

Heading the newly instituted organization are officers: Debbie Canada, president; Candy Ferguson, secretary-treasurer; Debbie Sering, historian; and Phyllis Brooks, vice-president.

Newly instituted this year, the Office Education Association replaced the traditional business club at CHS. Membership in the club was required of each student participating in the Cooperative Office Education program. The club meetings served as a place for the students to talk over their individual jobs, to iron out problems, and to share memorable on-the-job experiences.

Members of this national group attended a regional conference, and they were also encouraged to enter national contests. A major highlight was the employer-employee banquet where students, sponsors, and employers enjoyed a delicious meal and lively conversation.

HCC Explores Health Service Fields

Common interests and common goals bind together the members of HHC into one group led by K. Shaw, treas.; M. Gwynn, sec.; E. Wilson, pres.; and S. Frederick, vice pres.

Health Careers Club offered interested students the opportunity to learn about professions in the health field. Members of HCC examined the various occupations of doctors, dieticians, lab technicians, and physical therapists. Mrs. Tinsley, the school nurse, and Miss Mershon sponsored the club.

Speakers from different medical fields spoke at HCC meetings to give the members a diversified background in health careers. Students in the organization carried on discussions among themselves about their plans for the future. HCC also went on field trips throughout the year.

With the help of the sponsors, many students located schools where they could acquire the medical training necessary for their specific field.

Spanish Club Schedules Many Projects

A Spanish-dinner with all the trimmings and a skating party followed by a trip to the Taco House highlighted Spanish Club activities.

These two fun projects were possible only after some work projects. Club members sold spirit buttons and entertained the student body with a sports tournament to pay the bills. The club also contributed part of its funds to the Foundation for Mental Health.

During homeroom meetings the members viewed slides of South America and Spain, heard accounts by college students of their trips abroad, and acted out short plays in Spanish.

Guiding Spanish Club through another successful year are K. Osting, Treas.; G. Edwards, Sergeant-at-Arms; M. Ebenholtz, Pres.; C. Biddle, Program Chairman; S. Slattery, Vice Pres.; P. Coon, Secretary.

French Students Sample New Culture

The officers of "Le Cercle Francais" are: Kathy Trosper, secretary, Ellen Branstetter, vice-president, Diane Brock, president, and Patty McGaughey, treasurer.

French culture and customs were the topics of major concern to the students involved in French club. Guest speakers provided candid looks at the land and people of France by presenting slides of their trips abroad.

Money-making projects were devised to earn funds for the annual trip to Chez Jean, a French restaurant. Such a trip gave students the opportunity to sample French dishes and improve their spoken French. At Chez Jean, conversation was lively, and each student enjoyed the fellowship of other students.

Club sponsor, Mrs. Howlett, looking forward to a summer trip to France, organized a group of students for the trip. After much searching, she found a tour, and final trip plans were completed.

GAA Members Improve Athletic Skills

On a cold morning GAA officers, Linda Kingry, treas.; Regina Helms, secy.; Kay Elledge, pres.; and Virginia Pierce, vice-pres., meet at Miss Davidson's car before a scheduled event.

Fun and recreation were the two words basic to every activity of the Girls' Athletic Association this year. Basketball, volleyball, and kickball games were typical GAA activities. Girls from all three classes constituted this organization's membership, and each member strove to improve her physical skills and knowledge of sports.

Weekly meetings involved rigorous recreational activities. Special events, such as tournaments and homeroom games, added variety and entertainment to the club's projects. The annual candy sale enjoyed great success as funds in the club's treasury increased.

Adding to the variety of organizations at CHS was the newly formed Photography Club. Under the direction of Mr. Seale, students interested in the art of taking pictures studied cameras, camera techniques, and film development. The preparation room between 201 and 202 became the club's unofficial darkroom.

Photography club members were seen throughout the year snapping pictures around the halls of CHS. They played an important role in providing the yearbook staff with necessary candid shots of special events and school life. It was appropriate that the Photography Club sponsored feature films during homeroom as their money making project to help pay for film and camera equipment.

FTA Members Learn About Teaching

FTA Officers Marilyn Miles, sec.; Bonnie Rager, pres. and Melinda Zachary, treas., examine new aids used in the teaching of social studies courses.

Students planning to enter the field of education later in life as teachers and administrators gained valuable advice and knowledge as members of the Future Teacher's Association. Under the guidance of Mr. Burgess, students with a common goal in life studied the various aspects of education careers.

FTA had a car wash and an egg sale to raise money for the annual fifty dollar scholarship that is presented to a senior members of the organization. Another project sponsored by FTA was an exchange program with another school to give students the opportunity to observe various teaching methods.

FTA presented the Veteran's Day convocation. State Rep. Joseph Harrison spoke on youth and patriotism.

FHA Prepares Girls for Domestic Roles

As students began to plan their futures, several girls began preparing to be excellent wives and homemakers. Future Homemakers of America is an organization in which girls can learn additional skills to aid them in their daily chores.

The club at CHS gave girls an opportunity to share their ideas with others and to learn more about keeping house and caring for a family. Occasional meetings brought guest speakers to CHS to aid club members in examining many aspects of homemaking.

Because of its success in the past, FHA chose a sale of calendar towels to raise funds for the club's treasury. The money raised was used to implement ideas the girls felt were worthwhile.

SSS Boasts State Officer, Much Work

SSS Officers are: Nancy Dahl, president; Nancy Grimes, senior vice-president; Virginia Pierce, junior vice-president; Bonnie Bray, sophomore vice-president, Linda Morrison, recording secretary, Carolyn Hartman, corresponding secretary, and Dianne Brock, treasurer.

Many people in the community benefited from the efforts of the Sunshine Society. Sunshine members delivered Christmas certificates and cheer boxes to needy families. Teachers at CHS always looked forward to special treat on holidays made for them by the SSS School Spirit Committee. Sunshine Society also donated one dollar for each of its members to the Riley Hospital Fund in Indianapolis.

SSS was able to finance its projects with its annual candle sale. Profits from the sale also provided the necessary fund for the SSS Christmas Ball. "Santa's Workshop" was the setting for this year's holiday dance where SSS members and their escorts enjoyed a festive evening highlighted by the crowning of the Christmas Ball Queen.

ABC Projects Finance New Weight Machine

Admiring the weight machine ABC helped to buy are Steve Powers, secretary, Jeff Arvin, president; Phil Churchill, sgt. at arms; Tim Kellerman, vice-president, and (seated) Jack O'Neill, treasurer.

The all male Athenian Booster Club played an important role in promoting school spirit. It also functioned as a school service organization.

ABC undertook the gigantic task of paying for half of the newly acquired weight machine. In order to meet this obligation, ABC initiated three money-making projects. For the second consecutive year it sponsored a volleyball tournament between its members and male teachers. A first at CHS was a green stamp drive organized by ABC. This proved to be a popular way to raise money. ABC II, composed of sophomore boys, made its financial contribution by operating the coat check at basketball games.

ABC played a major role in providing the money for the weight machine. CHS athletes reap the benefits from the newly purchased piece of equipment as they work out under the direction of Coach Knecht.

Hard Work Results in 1971 Athenian

Business Manager, Barbara Coplea, takes a break from filing sales tickets and counting money to prepare for her seventh period class.

Completing layouts, planning picture schedules, and writing cut-lines were only a few of the tasks performed by the yearbook staff as it prepared the 1971 Athenian. Sixth period found the staff busily cropping pictures, composing headlines, and indexing names in order to meet its deadlines.

The staff was led by co-editors Deanna Wilson and Larry Palmer, who attended the I.U. yearbook institute last summer. Always there to offer assistance and keep the staff working was Mrs. Florence Servies.

Despite delays, some procrastination, and too many things to do in too little time, the Athenian arrived in the spring as scheduled. The staff felt a sense of accomplishment and relief as students received their copies of the 1971 Athenian.

Working together to produce the '71 Athenian are R. Otterman, C. Biddle, D. Wilson, L. Palmer, P. McGaughey, J. Shelton, B. Hahn, B. Coplea, B. Hobbs, and B. Ross.

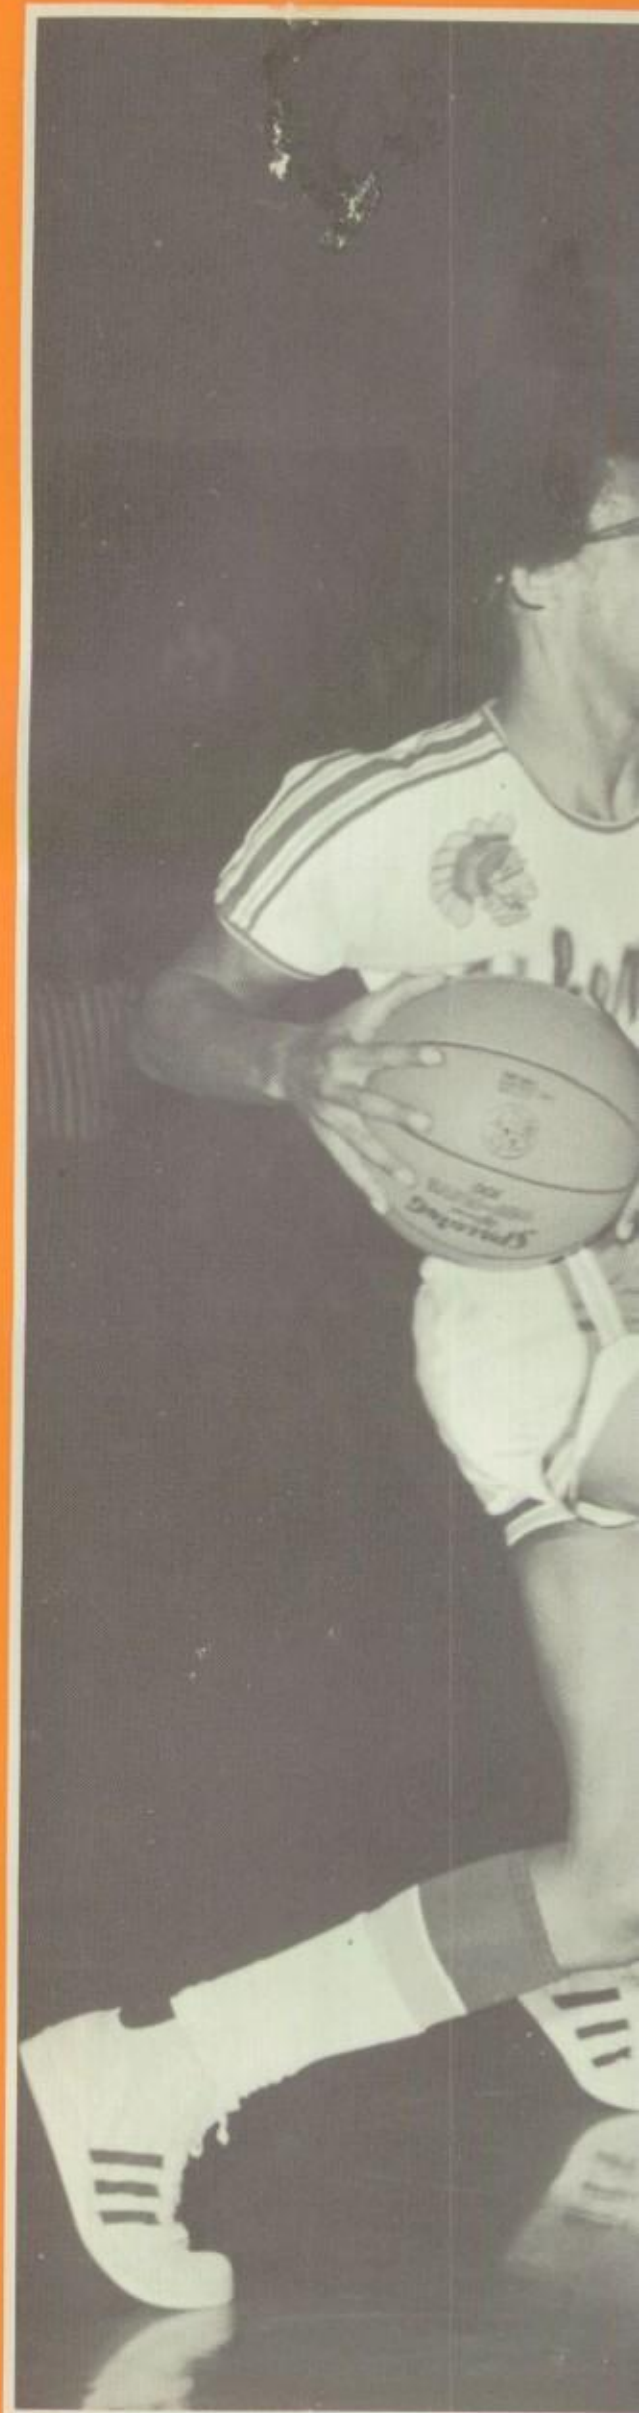

Athenian typist Reda Otterman has her work cut out for her when deadline time draws near. Reda makes good use of her eraser before handing pages to Mrs. Servies for editing.

With only one more deadline to meet, Athenian co-editors Larry Palmer and Deanna Wilson can smile as they plan a final layout.

Checking her watch, Mrs. Servies wonders if the staff will finish its work in time to attend the Christmas convocation.

CHS Tennis Team Places Second in Sectional

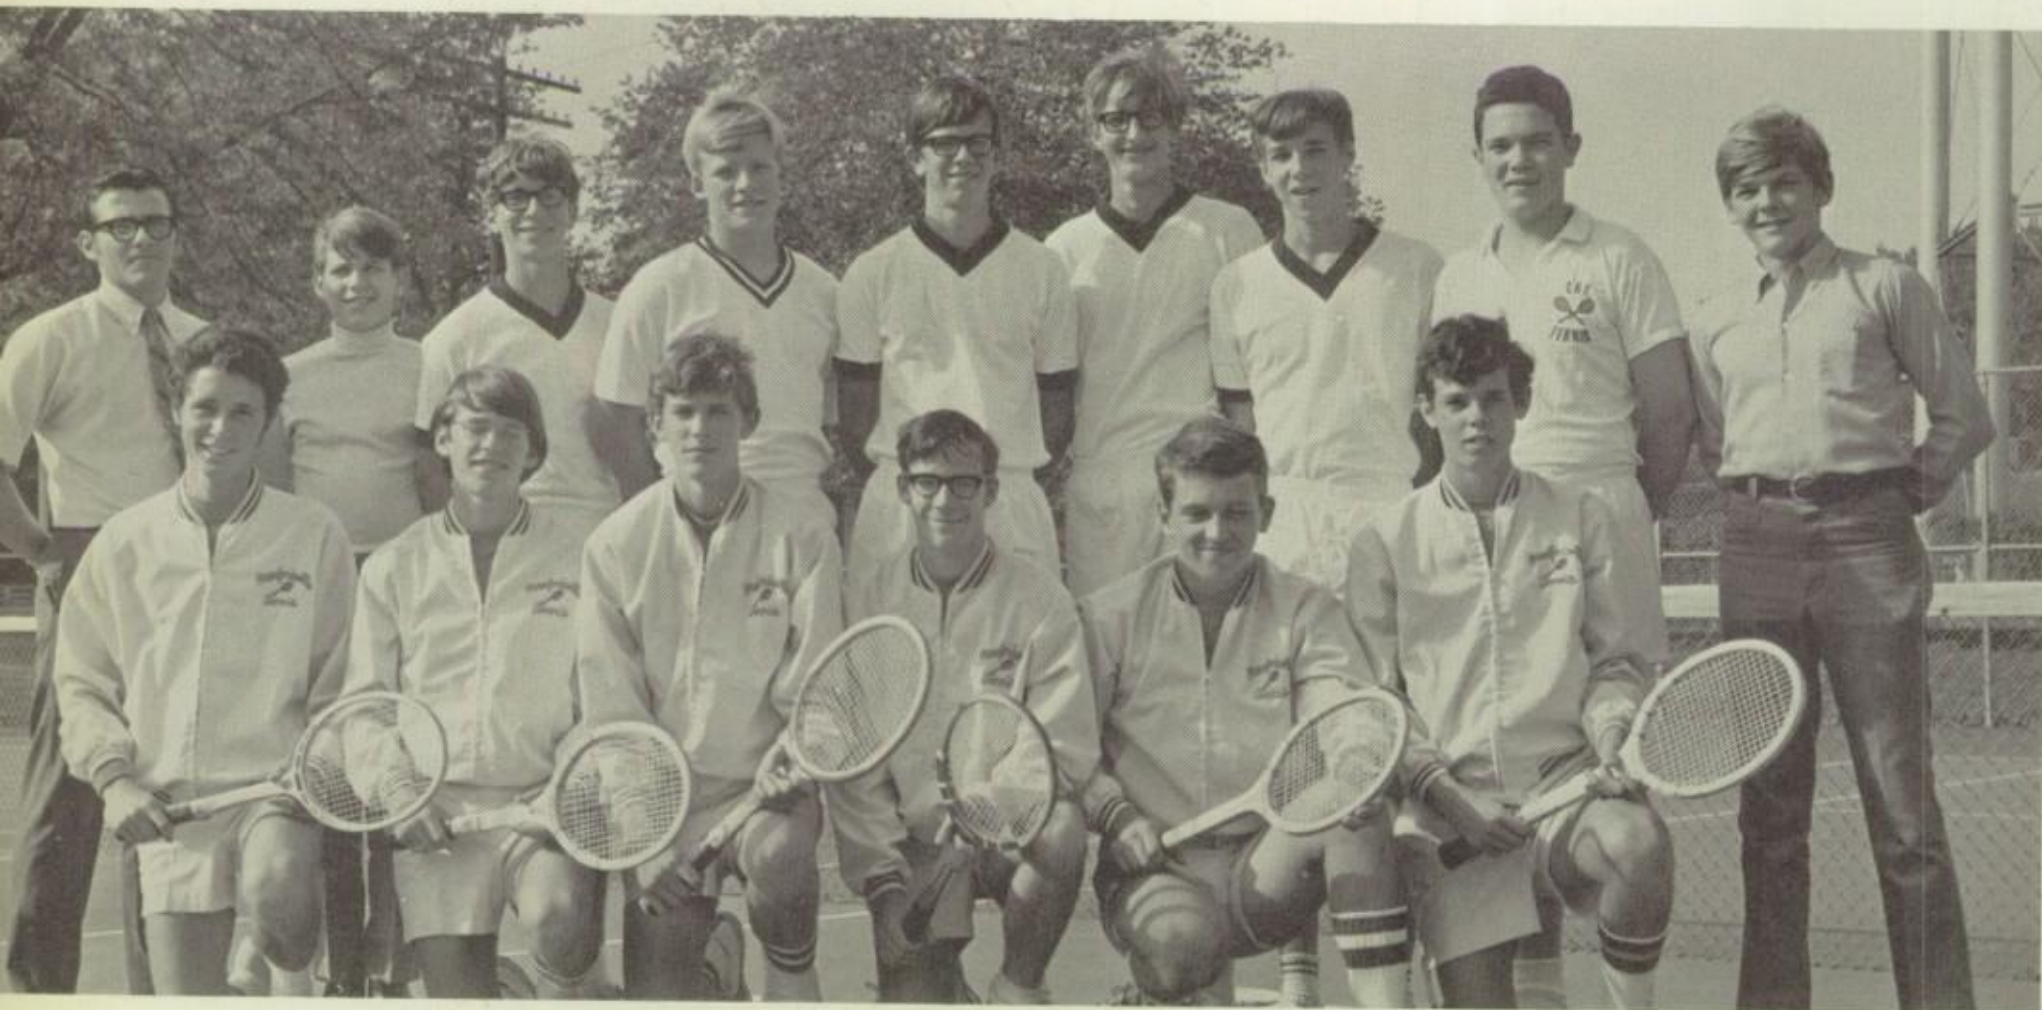

David Haines concentrates on the ball while practicing his serve.

The tennis team with their new coach, Richard Clouse, completed the season with a 7-5 record. They started the season with losses to Anderson and Lafayette Jeff. But this didn't last for long as the netters came back to win their next four conference games against Lebanon, Carmel, Noblesville, and Frankfort. The conference crown was just one game away but the bulldogs of Brownsburg shattered the Athenians' hopes by putting down Crawfordsville 6-1.

Consisting of only two seniors, Dave Haines, who held the number one position through the entire season and tied for second place in the sectional, and Jerry Whicker, the varsity, was made up mostly by underclassmen. Thus the prospects for next year's team look strong with the return of the underclassmen.

Cross Country Team Completes 11-3 Season

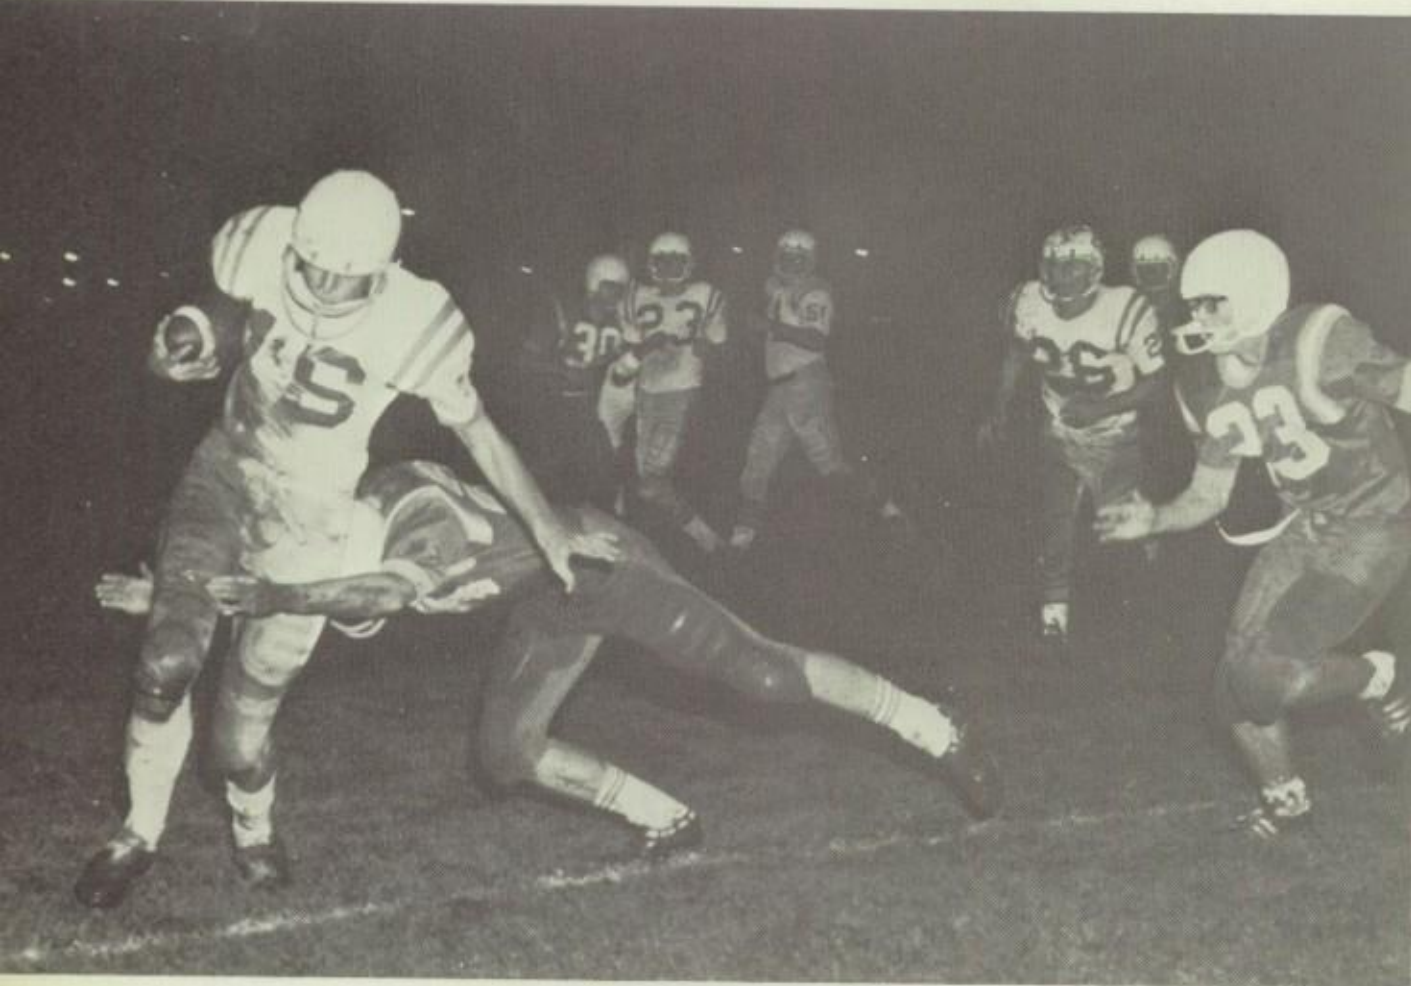

Athenian harriers suffered only three defeats this year to three tough opponents, Frankfort, Brazil, the defending sectional champions, and Central Catholic, prospective state champions. The team started the season with five straight victories and ended it with an 11-3 record. The Athenians also placed third in the Frankfort Invitational, third in the conference, and third in the sectional.

The outlook for next year is good with the return of three lettermen, Dirk Berard, Steve Demoret, and Dennis McDonald.

60-0 Victory Highlights Homecoming

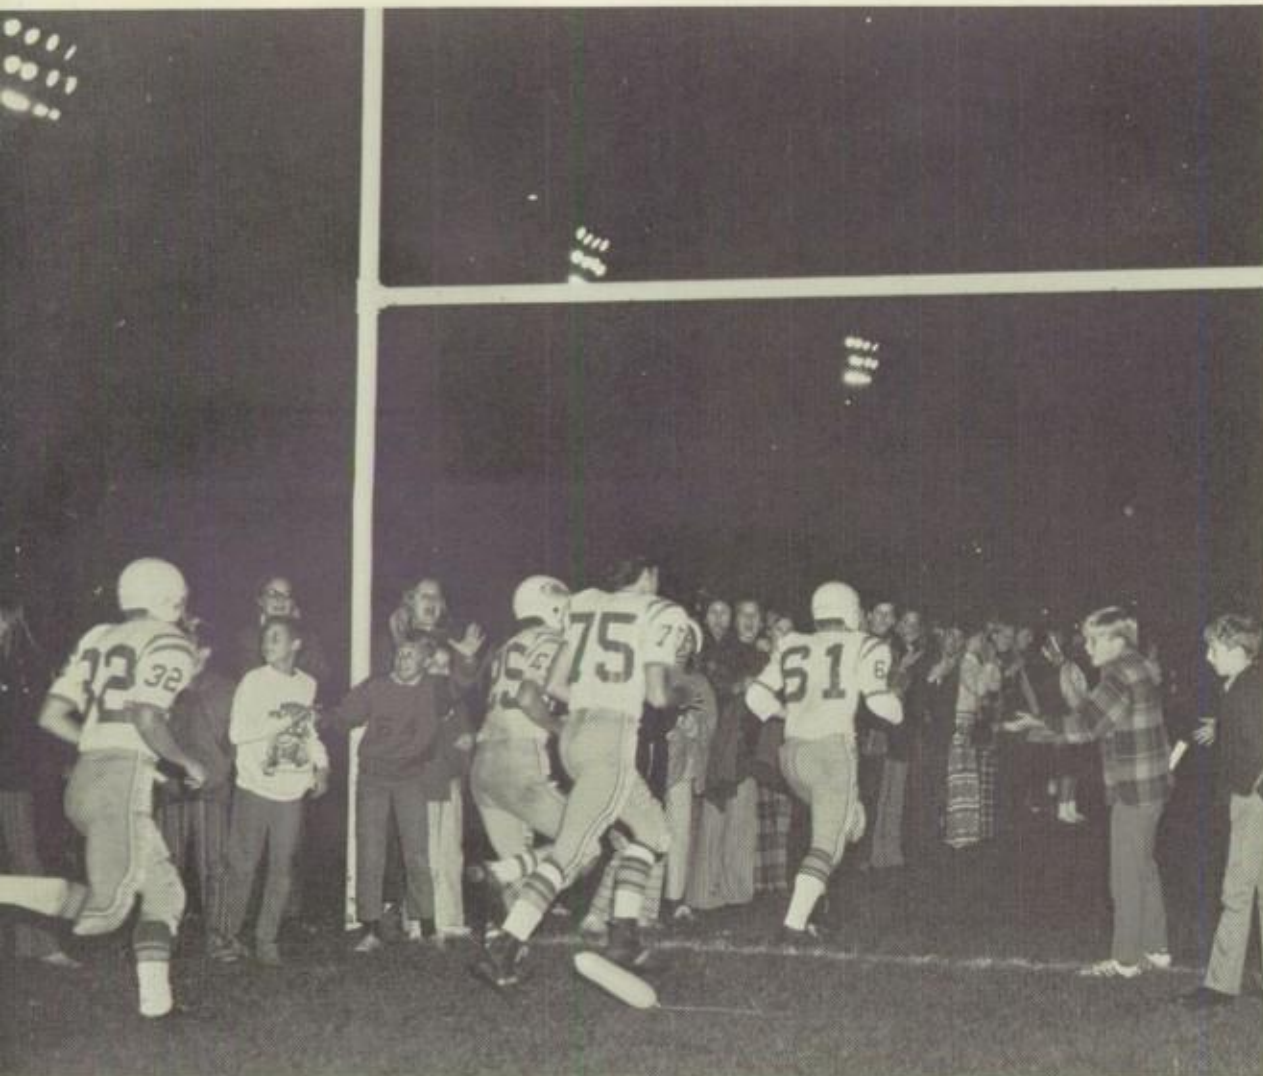

Mike Fox gains sufficient yardage for first down before being tackled.

Rain on Homecoming morning dampened the students' spirits. Many of the pre-game activities had been canceled and by afternoon it looked as if all Homecoming activities would be ruined. But when the rain stopped and the skies began to clear, word came that we would go ahead and have the parade. This along with the pep session lifted the students' spirits, which in turn gave the team the moral support needed for the 60-0 victory over Fountain Central.

The climax of the evening came with the crowning of the queen, Sandy Sperry, and the announcement that the Seniors had won the float contest.

Brenda Bullock, Kris Eggers, Wendy Gleason, Diane Harshbarger look on as David Lovold crowns Homecoming Queen Sandy Sperry with a kiss.

Athenian fans line up around goal post to give their support to the team.

Homecoming Queen, Sandy Sperry, reigns over Homecoming festivities.

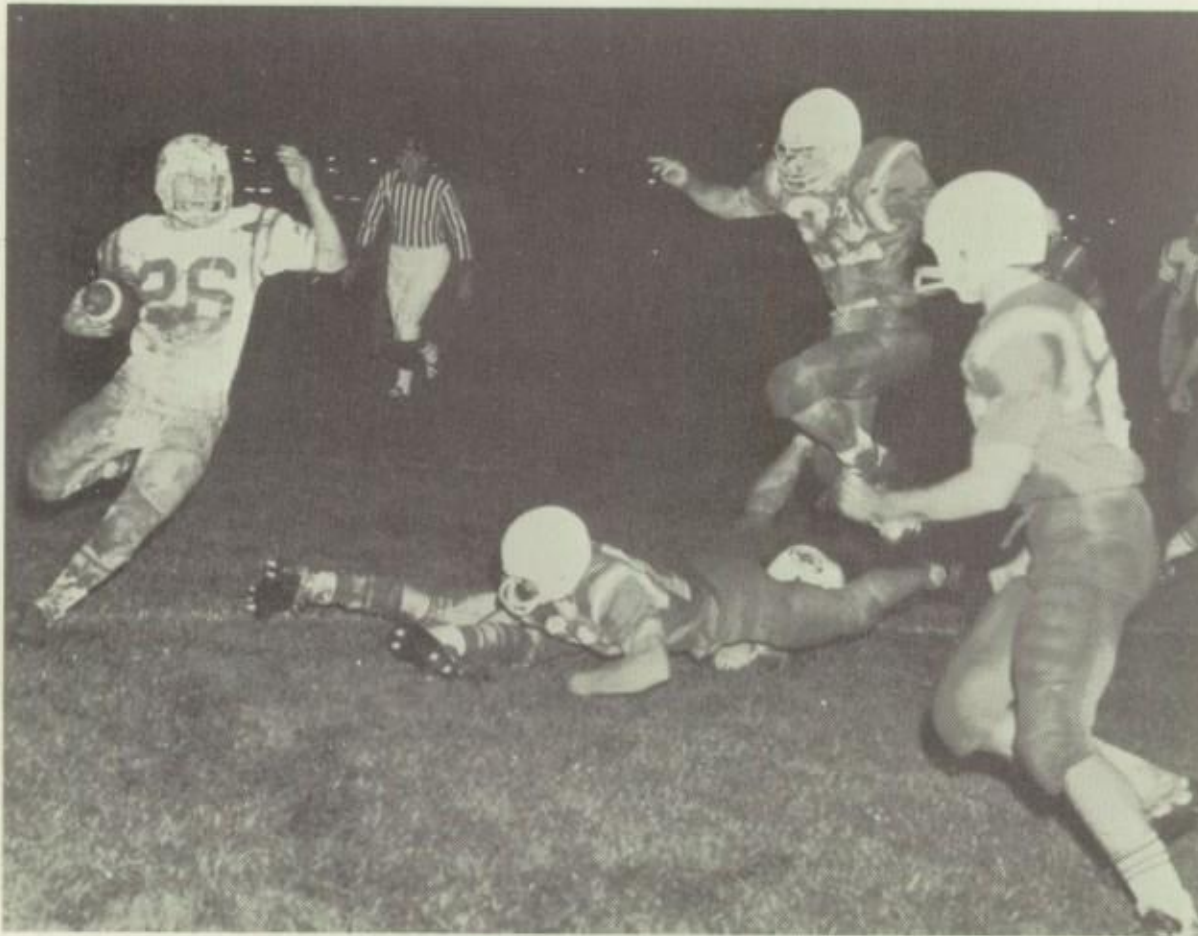

Wayne Hubbard, gaining vital yardage, finds himself host to Fountain Central tacklers.

With the theme "We're in Control" the class of "71" wins float contest for the second year in a row.

Athenians Defeat Conference Foe 40-7

Mike Harpest outruns a tackler in the Central Catholic game.

Athenian defenders, Gale Cox, Dan Stenger, Bruce Froedge, and Dave Caster greet a Jeff halfback at the line of scrimmage.

B-Team coach Paul Curtis, head coach Glenn Knecht, head line coach Don Avery, and B-Team coach Larry Motz face another discouraging season.

The Athenians first three games were scheduled against three tough Lafayette teams. After being defeated by Jeff 24-0, the football team came back to tie Central Catholic and West Lafayette 8-8 and 6-6 respectively.

The first Athenian victory came against long-time foe Lebanon. The defense held the Tigers to one touchdown, while Athenian Roger Long led the running attack for Crawfordsville.

Although the Athenians were off to a good start, injuries to key men on the offense and defense hurt the team's performance, thus contributing to a losing season.

Having a successful season, the B-Team, led by a new coach, Paul Curtis, and Coach Motz, finished with a 6-2 record. The good season was due to the fact that both the defense, allowing only 46 points, and the offense scoring 169 points, were strong. With these boys coming up, Coach Glen Knecht has a lot to look forward to.

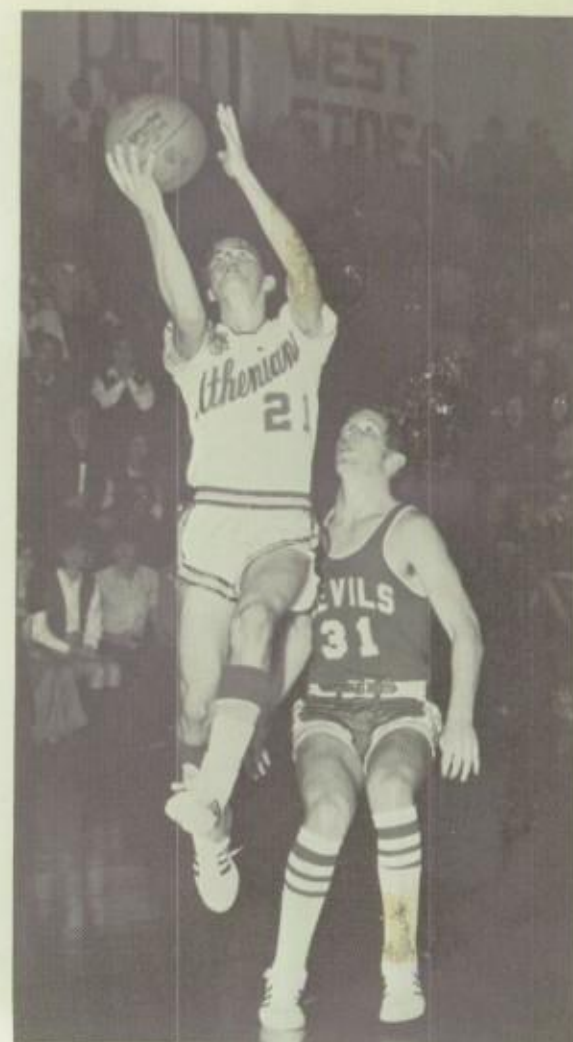

Wayne Hubbard, breaking a tackle, finds way to goal line unobstructed as he aids in the 60-0 victory over Fountain Central.

Phil Churchill, second highest scorer on the team, takes advantage of a pick, set by Mike Fox.

to a Sectional Win

New, Coach Paul Curtis coming here from Pike Township led the Athenian basketball squad to a successful season. The team started off the season with two losses in the openers, only to come back, with five straight wins against Greencastle, Brazil, Central Catholic, West Lafayette, and Terre Haute Garfield. The five-game winning streak was stopped cold by a five-game losing streak.

In the last leg of the regular season, the Athenians acquired three straight wins to finish the season in style. One of these games resulted in a new scoring record of 110 points, scored against Ladoga. The old record was 102 set by the 1968 team.

Coach Don Avery and his matsmen kept their record even until the last two meets of the season. They ended the season admirably by demolishing Lebanon and defeating West Lafayette.

In tournament meets we placed second in the Crawfordsville four-way tourney and fourth in the Bloomington eight-way tourney.

The team itself placed fourth in the sectional but a senior, John Lyons, wrestling in the 138 pound class, acquired a first in the sectional. He went on to place fourth in the regional. John was also selected as captain of the varsity.

At the end of the year awards were given to the most valuable wrestlers. Receiving the awards were Fred Earl, reserve, and Mike Thompson, varsity. Mike also acquired the most team points.

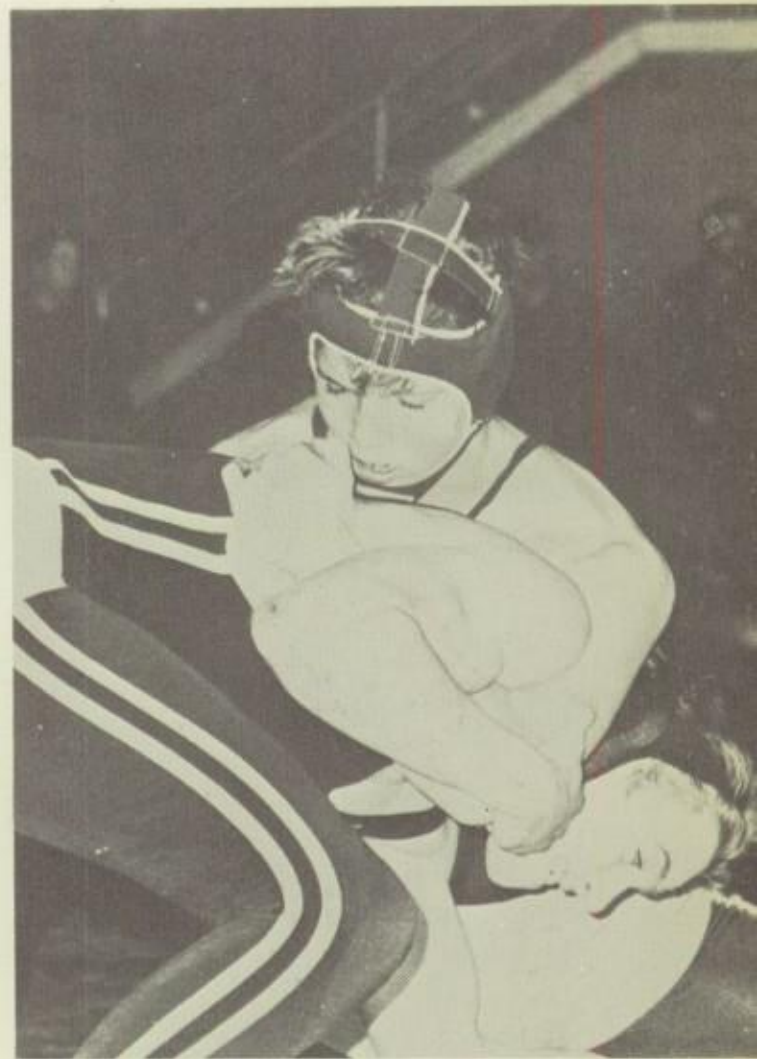

Seniors John Lyons and Dave Lovold practice their wrestling holds and maneuvers during after-school practices.

Swim Team's Second Year Proves Successful

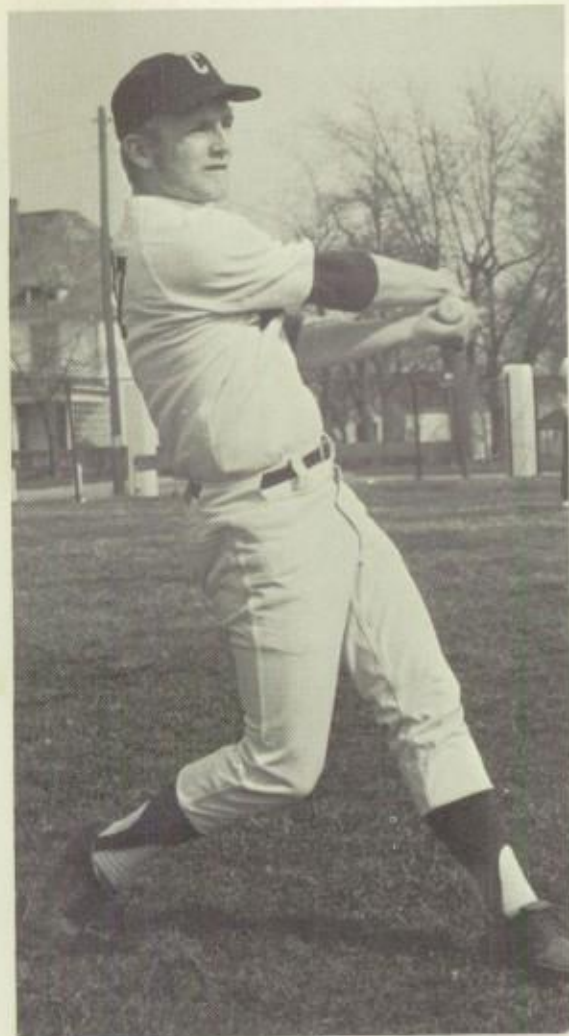

The swimming team's second year at Crawfordsville High School began with three losses. However the tankers came back to lose only one other meet the remaining of the season.

Their 8-4 record was complemented by numerous broken records. Mike Swift, sophomore, broke the 400 free-style record of 5:29 bringing the new record down to 4:48. The 200-yd. medley, 200-yd. free style, and the 400-yd. free-style relay were among the events in which records were broken. In fact, out of eleven events only one record was not broken, indicating improvement over our first season.

Jerry O'Rourke comes up for a mouthful of air and undoubtedly some water, too, as he swims for the finish.

Athenians Win Baseball Sectional

Wayne Hubbard takes a few practice swings before the game.

Coach Larry Motz led the baseball team to a 3-9 season. The not too impressive season was due to the fact that the pitcher and the hitting could never get together. When the hitting was good, the pitching was bad and when the pitching was good the batting was bad. But by the time the sectional came around these two pulled together. Jim Shelton pitched a no-hitter to put them into the final game. Jerry Snyder, pitched against a tough Darlington team, pitched a three hitter to clench the sectional.

Consisting of one senior and four underclassmen, the 1970 golf team finished the season with a 7-6-1 record. The Athenian linksmen also placed fourth out of twenty-seven teams in the sectional, losing third place to Franklin by only three strokes.

The team was led by a junior, Mark Haberstroh, with an average of 80.16 strokes per meet. The other positions on the varsity were filled by Dennis Elmore, Jerry Rule, David Stephens, and Terry Kendricks. With four of the five positions filled with returning lettermen and a new coach, Paul Curtis, the 1971 season looks promising.

Intramural Basketball Keeps High School Boys in Shape

Players concentrate on the ball as Dave Searle shoots a free-throw—a common scene in intramurals.

Intramurals, sponsored by Mr. Ryker and Mr. Nash, gave CHS boys who didn't make the high school team a chance to play organized competitive basketball. It also helped the boys who wouldn't have any other means of exercise to keep in shape.

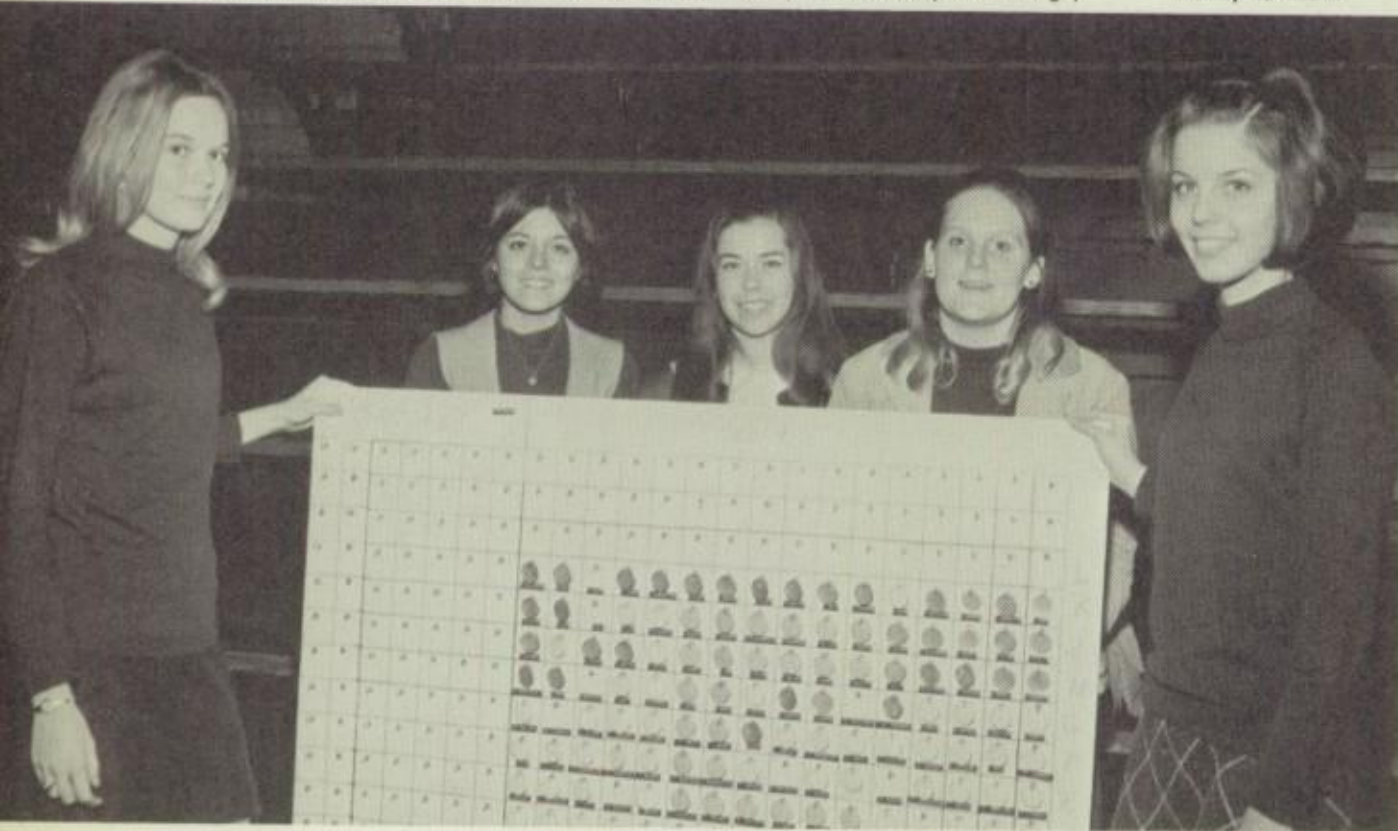

Seniors played in the main gym while the juniors and sophomores played in the lower gym. At the end of the season the first place team from the NBA (seniors) and ABA (underclassmen) played each other. The seniors were victorious. However, it was a different story when the all-stars from each division met. The underclassmen all-stars squeezed by a three point deficit.

Pep Block officers, Terri Wood, vice-president; Sandy Sperry, secretary; Dee Dee Rusk, cheerleader captain; Debbie Brennan, president; and Reda Otterman, treasurer; organize seating chart for over 150 pep block members.

Pep Block formed the nucleus of school spirit at basketball and football games. Yelling with the cheerleaders and waving gold and blue shakers, girls from all three classes supported the CHS athletic teams throughout the school year.

To raise money for fan buses, Pep Block members sold ball-point pens with the football schedule on them at the beginning of the school year. The success of the sale boosted school spirit as well as the Pep Block treasury.

Girls from Pep Block also entertained the students and teachers with amusing skits during memorable pep sessions.

Athenian Spirit Boosted by Cheerleaders

Leading over 150 students with spirited chants and yells, the cheerleaders enlivened each game. Spending one week at camp in Vincennes during the summer, the varsity cheerleaders learned and perfected new skills.

The B-team cheerleaders, leading yells earlier in the evening for the B-team basketball squad, used this year to learn new yells and motions, gaining the needed experience to become varsity cheerleaders in the forthcoming year.

B-team cheerleaders, Mona White, Brenda Bullock, Cindy Smith, and Billie Rusk are well on their way to becoming varsity cheerleaders.

In perfect form, varsity cheerleaders Sandy Fitzwater, Jan Taylor, Dee Dee Rusk, and Betsy Dreyer, demonstrate a formation learned at camp during the summer.

Robin
 To a nice sweet girl
 in homeroom Good luck in everything that you do. Always look to the future and not to the past.
 Luck Always
 Always me,
 Sandy

Barbie Hahn, Junior Editor, smiles at the work that is ahead.

With astonishment that the 1971 Athenian staff completed the work necessary to create a yearbook, we the members of that staff, wish to express our appreciation for the help of all those involved. For the cover design and division page artwork, we congratulate Barb Zach for her fine work. Thanks go to Mr. Gil Hutton of Photo Art Studio for the bulk of the pictures and to the Journal-Review, Bill Runge, and David Booker for the pictures made accessible to us. We thank Mr. Dick Kennard of Newsfoto Yearbooks who, with his uncanny ability to understand chaos, turned our hazy dreams into a reality. Finally we wish to express our deepest gratitude to our sponsor, Mrs. Servies, for her coping with missed deadlines, incompleting plans, and moody staff members.

Robin's sweet class is filled!
